Want immediate negotiations to acquire Greenland: Trump

Trump also said for the first time that he would not use military force in pursuit of the territory

DAVOS (SWITZERLAND)

US President Donald Trump on Wednesday called for immediate negotiations toward a deal to acquire Greenland, adding that he would not use force in his campaign for the northern island.

"I'm seeking immediate negotiations to once again to discuss the acquisition of Greenland by the United States," he told world leaders gathered in Davos, Switzerland.

Trump said only the US was capable of securing Greenland and the urgent need for negotiations had nothing to do with rare earths.

'We were stupid to give back Greenland'

Greenland, which has driven a rift between the US and the European Union, Trump called the country a "big, beautiful piece of ice". Reiterating that no one other than the US could defend Greenland, he said the country was "stupid" to give it back to Denmark after World War II, only to get ingratitude in return.

'Europe not headed in right direction'

Europe is not headed in the right direction, Trump said at the World Economic Forum, in a direct attack on a continent that has historically shared a close alliance with the US superpower. He proclaimed America as an "economic engine on the planet." Slamming Europe, he said parts of the continent were "not recognizable." "The USA is the economic engine on the planet. And when America booms, the entire world booms. It's been the history," he said at Davos, adding, "I love Europe, and I want to see Europe go good, but it's not heading in the right direction."

'Settled 8 wars, including India-Pak'

US President Donald Trump on Wednesday repeated his claim of solving eight international wars, including India-Pakistan conflict last year, during his one year of presidency. The US President made the remark in an address at World Economic Forum in Davos, Switzerland. "I am now working on this war for one year during which time I settled eight other wars, (including) India-Pakistan. I have settled other wars that were. Vladimir Putin called me... Armenia-Azerbaijan. He said that I can't believe you settled that. They were going on for 35 years," he said.

'Will wipe Iran off the face of earth'

US President Donald Trump on Tuesday reiterated that Iran would be wiped "off the face of this earth" if any attempt was made to assassinate him, issuing one of his strongest warnings yet amid rising tensions between Washington and Tehran. Trump, as per reports, said he had given what he described as "very firm instructions" to his advisers. "If anything happens, they're going to wipe them off the face of this earth," he said, adding that the entire country would be "blown up" in the event of such an attack.

Cong, BJP–JD(S) brace for stormy legislature session

BENGALURU

The joint session of the Karnataka legislature, which will begin on Thursday, is expected to be stormy, with confrontation anticipated between the ruling Congress and the opposition BJP-JD (S) combine on a host of issues, including the "repeal" of the MGNREGA by the Centre.

The session from 22 to 31 January will begin with Governor Thaawarchand Gehlot's customary address to the joint sitting of the legislature on Thursday.

Confrontation is expected between the treasury and opposition benches as the ruling Congress is planning to pass a resolution against the BJP-led NDA government at the centre for repealing the UPA era MGNREGA, and demand for its restoration by scrapping the new Viksit Bharat Guarantee for Rozgar and Ajeevika Mission (Gramin).

The state government's move coincides with the Congress's nationwide campaign "Save MGNREGA".

The Karnataka cabinet has decided not to accept the recently enacted VB-G RAM G Act, replacing the MGNREGA, and to take up a legal battle against it.

The opposition BJP too is preparing to counter the ruling Congress's "misinformation campaign" by seeking to highlight that the VB-G RAM G Act revamps MGNREGA, aimed at strengthening rural employment and livelihood. The opposition party is also likely to point out reports about alleged misappropriation of funds under the erstwhile legislation.

BJP President BY Vijayendra had recently accused CM Siddaramaiah of using the legislature session to save his chair, along with spreading false propaganda against the central government's programmes.

Guv refuses to address joint session

Karnataka Governor Thaawarchand Gehlot Wednesday refused to address the joint session of the state legislature scheduled to be held from January 22, official sources said on Wednesday. A high-level delegation led by Law and Parliamentary Affairs Minister HK Patil rushed to the Lok Bhavan (previously Raj Bhavan) to meet the Governor in this regard. "In the wake of the Governor's refusal to address the joint session tomorrow, a high-level delegation led by the Law Minister will leave for Raj Bhavan (Lok Bhavan) at 5.45 pm today," stated in a release.

Adopt the vachanas of Ambigara Chowdaiah in life: MLC Dr Thimmaiah

MYSURU

Member of the Legislative Council Dr. D. Thimmaiah said that Ambigara Chowdaiah composed several vachanas and that everyone should adopt the principles contained in his vachanas in their personal lives.

Speaking after inaugurating the Ambigara Choudayya Jayanti celebrations organised today by the district administration, Mysuru City Corporation and the Department of Kannada and Culture here on Wednesday, he said that there are constitutional opportunities for people to progress economically, socially and educationally. The unorganised sections of society must unite, as problems can be resolved only when everyone comes together. In Basavanna's Anubhava Mantapa, Ambigara Choudaiah stood firmly in support of the backward classes. There were 180 members in the Anubhava Mantapa, including prominent figures such as Allama Prabhu, Akka Mahadevi, Ambigara Choudaiah, Madivala Machaiah, Madara Channaiah, Jedara Dasimaiah and others, who collectively worked towards building a complete and just society.

The MLC said Ambigara Choudaiah earned his livelihood by rowing boats. Considering his subject matter, language and style, he was a bold, straightforward and uncompromising vachanakara with a natural, rustic temperament. He never hesitated to criticise anyone or anything when required. Though soft-spoken, he spoke directly and frankly. At a time when society was divided into Brahmin, Kshatriya, Vaishya and Shudra, Ambigara Choudayya fearlessly highlighted the flaws and shortcomings in the social system. He worked to eliminate certain social evils and contributed to social progress through his vocation.

Delivering the keynote address, Dr. L. Bhavani said that Ambigara Choudayya was born at a place called Shivapura on the banks of the Tungabhadra river. He was inspired by the philosophy and principles of Basavanna and became a member of the Anubhava Mantapa. Like Basavanna, Choudaiah began to express his ideological principles through vachanas and steered his life towards spirituality.

Gangamatha president Vasanthamma said that everyone should understand Basavanna's ideals of a casteless society. People must learn about the efforts undertaken by Basavanna to eliminate discrimination prevalent in earlier times. Declaring that all human beings are equal, Basavanna fought to establish a casteless society. Present-day generations must study Basavanna's vachanas, as vachana literature plays a vital role in life. The caste system can be eradicated only through education.

Joint Director of the Department of Kannada and Culture V. N. Mallikarjuna Swamy, Assistant Director Sudarshan, Gangamatha leader Basavayya, Secretary Chikka Lingaswamy and others were present.

"Education Is Very Important for Children"

MYSURU

In today's circumstances, education is extremely important for children. If they pursue their studies with dedication and devotion, they can achieve anything in life, said C. M. Shivaiah, retired Physical Education Department Supervisor of Periyapatna taluk in Mysuru district.

Delivering the inaugural address at a programme organised by the Saptagiri Kshema Abhivruddhi Sangha here, he said it was very difficult to obtain education in their time. Even so, their parents worked as daily-wage labourers to educate their children. Today, however, the government provides all kinds of facilities. Students should make use of these opportunities, focus on their studies, pursue higher education, attain higher positions, and serve backward communities and children like themselves. At present, children have no responsibility other than studying. Parents should support their children's education and intellectual development and should not burden them with excessive household work. Education should be the primary goal of children, and they should move in a direction that leads to achievement. Along with this, children must also take care of their health, he advised.

Pointing out the increasing dependence on mobile phones among today's students, he said this habit must be given up. Parents should stop giving mobile phones to children from a very young age. Instead, children should be encouraged to read newspapers daily, read books, and participate in extracurricular activities such as sports and games. Once children fall into mobile phone addiction, it becomes very difficult to give it up. Hence, giving mobile phones to young children should be prohibited from an early age.

Dr. B. Lakshman, Assistant Professor in the Department of Chemistry at Mysore Maharani Women's Science College, said students should participate in such training camps to gain clarity about their future education—what kind of education leads to which positions, and what their future goals should be.

R. Rajesh, President of Saptagiri Kshema Abhivruddhi Sangha, delivered the presidential address. B. Balakrishna of Union Bank, Bengaluru, released the Saptagiri Kshema Abhivruddhi Sangha calendar.

On the occasion, students who had achieved good marks in SSLC and PUC examinations were encouraged and felicitated, and senior citizens were also honoured.

MLC Manjegowda accused GTD of backstabbing JDS

MYSORE

Janata Dal (Secular) MLC C.N.Manjegowda said he has not done anything against the party or done anything to embarrass the party leaders. He is still at the party despite being hurt. Addressing a news conference here, the MLC lashed out at Chamundeshwari MLA G.T. Deve Gowda, who claims to be in the party whenever the issue of elections comes up, saying that whatever he does at other times is anti-party work. The JDS influence and party leaders were responsible for Siddaramaiah's victory in Chamundeshwari constituency. However, after the victory, T. Deve Gowda forgot this and accused him of working against the party on several occasions. The incumbent MLA GTD indulged in a slanderous campaign against the party's official candidate for the South Graduates constituency election, H.K. Ramu. People have not forgotten that Devegowda openly supported BJP candidate Raghu Kautilya by campaigning against him, who was the party's candidate in the local body elections. Besides, he voted for BJP candidate Laxman Savadi in the 2020 elections to fill the seat vacated by the resignation of Rizwan Arshad, who was a member of the Legislative Council.

Manjegowda claimed that during the Hunsur Assembly polls, GTD campaigned for the Congress candidate H.P. Manjunath against the party's candidate Devarhalli Somashekar. Besides, he worked against S.R.Mahesh in K R Nagar Assembly election by supporting the Congress candidate.

Youth dies of a leopard attack near MM Hills

MYSURU

In a tragic incident, a youth who was walking on foot to the famous pilgrimage centre Male Mahadeshwara Hills in Hanur taluk of the Chamarajanagar district was killed in a leopard attack early this morning (Wednesday). The body was found at around 11 am. The incident occurred at Talubetta, at the foothills of Male Mahadeshwara Hills.

The deceased has been identified as Praveen (30), a resident of Chiranahalli village in Mandya district, who was undertaking the pilgrimage on foot. Hundreds of devotees from Chiranahalli village and surrounding areas in Mandya district had set out on a padayatra (foot pilgrimage) to Male Mahadeshwara Hills.

On Tuesday night, they had halted at Talubetta and on Wednesday morning started walking from there towards Male Mahadeshwara Hills.

At that time, near Rangaswamy Odi on the pilgrims' walking route, a leopard that was sitting there suddenly attacked Praveen and dragged him away. Though five friends who were with him shouted and made repeated attempts to chase the leopard away, it dragged Praveen into the forest, sources said.

Terrified, the friends informed the Male Mahadeshwara Hills police. The police later arrived at the spot, conducted a search and recovered the body.

It may be recalled that over the past one week, videos of a leopard repeatedly being seen sitting by the roadside had gone viral on social media.

Ban order

The district administration has issued a ban orders on the padayatra by devotees and two-wheeler driving to MM Hills till January 24, in view of ongoing leopard capture operations by the Forest Department.

So there will be a temporary restriction on the movement of devotees and the general public in the forest area of Malai Mahadeshwar Hill in Hanur Taluk of Chamarajanagar district. As per the order issued under the relevant provisions of various acts, movement on foot and by two-wheeled vehicles has been prohibited in the affected forest area from 6.00 pm on January 21 to midnight on January 24.

The restriction, however, will not apply to forest department personnel, officers, veterinary staff involved in the leopard capture operation, or police personnel deployed for bandobast duties.

HUNSUR MLA INSPECTS NH WORKS

HUNSUR

The work on National Highway–275 passing through Hunsur city is currently in progress. MLA G.T. Harish Gowda, along with National Highways Authority Regional Officer Sridhar, Highway Deputy Engineer Syed Tabassum, City Municipal Commissioner Manasa, engineers Lokesh and Soumya, and other officials, visited the site and inspected the ongoing works.

Speaking to reporters after the inspection,Harish Gowda said that the stretch of National Highway–275 within the city limits—from the Devaraj Urs statue near the APMC to Halagere village—is being developed at a cost of ₹56 crore. The 5.1-km road is being widened into a four-lane highway along with service roads, and the work is progressing steadily.

While inspecting the road works underway on the city bypass road, he further stated that based on a proposal submitted to the Central Government for road widening from the city outskirts up to Halagere village, Union Minister for Road Transport and Highways Nitin Gadkari approved the development of a four-lane road at an estimated cost of ₹80 crore in 2024. The tender process for this project has been completed, and about 40 per cent of the work has already been finished.

Flyovers

Due to a recent increase in traffic congestion on National Highway–275, it has been decided to construct flyovers at highly crowded locations. Accordingly, the National Highway–275 management team has identified Bannikupe, Emmekoppalu, and Kallabettathiruvu in the taluk for the construction of flyovers at these locations.

The flyover construction work at Bannikupe village had come to a halt midway as the project was initiated without obtaining clearance from the green/environmental authorities. Recently, after the Environmental Protection Committee held a meeting and approved the condition that saplings twice the number of trees removed should be planted as compensation, the project was given the green signal. The Central Government has released ₹13 crore for this flyover project, and the road is expected to be inaugurated by January 2027, the MLA said.

VOICES RISE TO PROTECT MYSURU'S SACRED CROWN

MYSURU

In a powerful display of public conscience and cultural pride, Chamundi Hills—Mysuru's spiritual and ecological lifeline—echoed today with slogans of resistance as political leaders, environmental activists, concerned citizens, and representatives of multiple NGOs staged a protest rally against ongoing excavation and construction works near the sacred Garbhagudi of Sri Chamundeshwari Temple and the hilltop area.

Protesters warned that the construction is being carried out in an ecologically sensitive, landslide-prone zone, without proper scientific studies, environmental clearances, or spiritual approvals as mandated under Agama Shastra. They cautioned that such reckless activity could irreversibly scar the hill's fragile ecosystem, compromise forest biodiversity, and even endanger the structural stability of the centuries-old temple.

Placards reading "Save Chamundi Hills," "Heritage Over Haste," and "Stop Unscientific Excavation" painted a vivid picture of public anger and concern.

Call for Science, Transparency, and Respect for Heritage

Eminent doctor and social worker, Dr. Shushrutha Gowda addressed the gathering at length, underscoring the urgent need for a comprehensive Environmental Impact Assessment (EIA) and a Heritage Impact Assessment before undertaking any activity in such a sensitive zone. "Chamundi Hills is not just a tourist spot—it is a living heritage site, a biodiversity hotspot, and a spiritual beacon. Any intervention here must be guided by science, sustainability, and deep respect for tradition. Proceeding without transparency is a recipe for disaster."

Dr Gowda strongly demanded an immediate halt to construction until all project details, scientific reports, and approvals are placed in the public domain.

Ignoring Courts, Ignoring Citizens?

Adding fuel to public outrage, protesters pointed out that despite a court's suggestion to halt the work, the district administration continues construction, raising serious questions about adherence to judicial directions and democratic norms. The project, they alleged, is being pushed forward without meaningful consultation with stakeholders, including local residents, environmental experts, temple authorities, and heritage conservationists.

Local vendors, residents of nearby areas, and frequent visitors to the hill expressed deep anxiety over the ongoing works. Many fear loss of livelihood, increased landslide risks, and permanent damage to the sanctity and serenity of the hill.

Rightly citizens are agitating to save their revered deity Chamundi's sacred abode Chamundi Hill. Despite widespread protests expressing emotions, sentiments, concern for safety & security of earth strata vis a vis weight of concrete due to legal & illegal constructions, non-adherence of rules, regulations for protection of ecology around the Hillock, concerned authorities are carrying forward the implementation of PRASAD program.

In order to save the Chamundi Hill, I suggest stopping of all proposed works in & around the hill, conduct a close aerial survey with the help of suitable drones, get old 50 years old survey maps of the hill, superimpose the drone survey results, identify legal/illegal buildings, mark encroachments, take immediate action to vacate such identified illegal structures so that eco system of the hill can be rejuvenated. Occupants may approach judiciary for redressal of their grievances. For addressing this, a separate Legal Cell may be set up by Government for speedy finalisation.

PRASAD implementation may be kept in abeyance & status quo may be maintained.

Disregarding public, opinion & disagreements tantamount to negligence of democratic movement at grassroots level. This is not acceptable.

Vasanthkumar Mysoremath
Environmentalist and World Bank Honored Innovator

They collectively appealed to the media, elected representatives, and policymakers to intervene immediately and prevail upon the district administration to stop what they termed an "unscientific and dangerous project."

A Hill Worth Protecting

As chants filled the air and emotions ran high, one message stood clear: Chamundi Hills is not merely land to be altered, but a legacy to be protected—for Mysuru, for Karnataka, and for generations to come.

Greens oppose the mushrooming of layouts around the Chamundi Hill

MYSORE

Environmentalists and social activists have expressed strong objections to the proposed construction of new settlements in various survey numbers on a 50-acre area adjacent to the forest area at the foot of Chamundi Hills.

In the MDA meeting held on August 8, 2025, the Urban Planning Committee members expressed objections to the 4 acres 27 guntes of land submitted for change of land use from Special Agricultural Zone to Residential Zone in Kurubarahalli village, S. No.98. In addition, the Secretary of the Shivamogga Environmental Service Association, Vidyadeepa, expressed strong objections to the public announcement published in the print media, despite having submitted objections.

The cultural city of Mysore has its own special environment. If permission is given for residential use of about 50 acres of land in various survey numbers, several plant species, trees and other eco-system organisms in the forest will be destroyed, and there is a possibility of climate change. Therefore, Vidyadeepa has filed a petition seeking to keep this agricultural land in its current state.

Although the Special Land Acquisition Officer of the Authority issued a preliminary notification on April 3, 2006 regarding the acquisition of these lands, the government has not issued a final notification. However, it has been alleged that the concerned applicants have not been informed about the cancellation of the preliminary notification during the land conversion.

Similarly, no letter of no-objection has been submitted by the local body regarding the provision of basic facilities to this layout. Such vague notifications should be forwarded to the government which has prepared the file recommending permission to convert the land for residential use.

There is clear evidence that MDA officials have approved four or five more real estate entrepreneurs in this case. The officials have no intention of saving the environment or the Chamundi Hills, which are the peak of Mysore. If they have enough money, the officials will convert any land into anyone's name, opined Kiran Kumar, environmentalist.

Chamundi Hills to Be Developed Without Harming Its Heritage,claims HCM

MYSURU

Social Welfare and District Incharge Minister Dr. H. C. Mahadevappa claimed that that Chamundi Hills will be developed under the PRASAD scheme without causing any damage to its heritage.

Presiding over a review meeting on the progress of the PRASAD scheme, held here on Wednesday, he said that development works are being carried out on Chamundi Hills without causing harm to the environment. As the number of devotees visiting Chamundi Hills is steadily increasing, development is being undertaken to ensure proper arrangements for darshan without causing inconvenience to devotees.

The minister said development works will be carried out in a manner that does not inconvenience the residents living on Chamundi Hills. For this reason, grievances and opinions of the hill residents are being collected today. Officials must prepare plans after taking into account the suggestions of the residents and proceed accordingly.

Chamundeshwari Assembly Constituency MLA G. T. Devegowda said that during VVIP darshan, the entry of around 50 additional people creates confusion and inconvenience, and a solution must be found for this issue. Separate arrangements should be made—one route for temple entry and another for exit. Permission to set up shops on the hill should be given only to those eligible persons who originally had shops there, and not to others.

Deputy Commissioner G. Lakshmikant Reddy informed that ₹45.70 crore has been sanctioned under the PRASAD scheme. To facilitate smooth darshan, a stone queue mantapa (covered queue corridor) is being constructed. The queue will originate near the Mahabaleshwara Temple and extend to the front of the main temple.

The meeting was attended by Zilla Panchayat Chief Executive Officer S. Yukesh Kumar, Secretary of the Chamundeshwari Constituency Development Authority Roopa, along with officials from various departments.

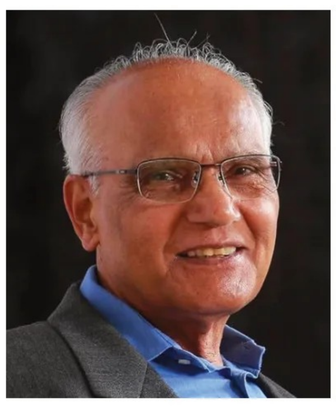
"Kannada litterateur Bhyrappa had opposed PRASAD project long ago"

MYSURU



Mysore Grahakara Parishat Founder President Bhamy V Shenoy has released a letter written by noted Kannada litterateur, late Prof S.L.Bhyrappa to Prime Minister Narendra Modi opposing the PRASAD project for the Chamundi Hill.

According to Shenoy, Prof Bhyrappa had written this letter over five years ago when he came to know that the Government of India had selected Chamundi Hill for the PRASAD scheme.

The letter reads as follows;

Respected PM Modi ji,

I am writing this letter requesting you to ask your tourism ministry to apply the true spirit of animaginatively and beautifully conceived concept of PRASHAD to promote spiritual tourism for a project in Chamundi Hills in Mysuru.

What I have heard about the project proposal submitted by the Karnataka state government haspained me. It is concentrating more on the modern concept of architecture using concrete and environmentally unsustainable materials. What we need is to demolish the already existing concrete jungle and restore the natural beauty of the hill with minimum interference from contractors. The State Government's proposal adds some more to the concrete jungle in the name of glamorizing it.

Below I have outlined my suggestions for your consideration.

Chamundi Hills have many granite rocks. Especially during summer months, they emit heat. We need to plant hill friendly trees which will cover those rocks and stop being heated. This will result in some cooling for the city. Around the temple, on the hill top, we should have massive planting of trees instead of the artificial roof constructed today. For most part today there are hardly any trees and the proposal also does not talk of any greening. With more than 4000 residents on top of the hill which was hardly in the hundreds a few years back, it has reached an unsustainable limit. We should limit houses only to priests and working staff of the temple. All

Other houses should be relocated in the city and compensated as we have done with tribals in some reserve forests.

All private vehicles including VIPs (as a model to others) should be banned and only electric operated buses should be allowed. To the extent possible all concrete jungle already created should be demolished with minimum harm to the environment. I am pained to write that even though the authorities assured the environmentalists that no dynamite will be used for multi-level parking, such assurances were ignored. People responsible were never held accountable. We do not know what damage it has created not only to the old temple subsoil but also to wild animals and birds.

Finally I want to suggest a novel idea which has not been attempted anywhere in India or the world. Instead of Chamundi hill copying Hampi or Tirupathi, it should develop its own development model for others to adapt. Only pooja materials should be sold by the temple authorities and not by private vendors. The atmosphere on the hill top should be conducive to people who want to meditate or breathe silence. What I am suggesting is in total compliance of what you had proposed during the Paris summit in 2015 to fight climate change. It is to adapt India's civilization message of "simple living, high thinking". One other unintended benefit is that we do not need to spend huge funds to implement what I am proposing.

The former government of Karnataka has constructed with cement and bricks a multi-level parking lot for 600 cars and 100 commercial shops. With the result they have converted the hill top to commercial centre destroying the Yaatra centre which it was earlier. The serenity and peace are totally destroyed. For centuries there were steps to climb the hill. The steps should be shadowed by bowers and not metallic structures.

India must become innovation-driven powerhouse: Governor

India is emerging as a global powerhouse driven by knowledge, innovation and entrepreneurship

BENGALURU

Universities should actively nurture startups that address pressing challenges in rural development, health, education, environment, and digital inclusion, said Governor Thawarchand Gehlot. Speaking at the Association of Indian Universities South Zone Vice Chancellors Meet: 2025-26, hosted by MS Ramaiah University of Applied Sciences, he emphasized that India can shift from a knowledge-based economy to an innovation-led superpower only when universities become hubs of entrepreneurship.

Highlighting the need for youth participation in national development, Gehlot stressed that exposure to cutting-edge knowledge and technology can enhance students' productivity, motivate self-employment, and contribute to overall economic growth. "South India has historically led in education, science, and technology. Cities like Bengaluru demonstrate that when academia, research, and industry converge, world-class startups and innovations emerge. This model must be replicated nationwide," he said.

The conference will also discuss fostering entrepreneurial thinking among students, establishing incubation and innovation centers to promote techno-nationalism, and strengthening university-industry collaboration for startup development. "Entrepreneurship is not just a tool for economic growth; it drives social change, sustainable development, and inclusive progress," the Governor added.

Governor Gehlot lauded national initiatives such as Startup India, Atmanirbhar Bharat, and Make in India, emphasizing that the future depends on preparing graduates to become job creators. He noted that fostering a startup culture in higher education develops problem-solving skills, risk-taking ability, and creative thinking. Incubation centers, startup labs, industry-academia partnerships, and mentorship programs offer platforms for students to turn ideas into viable products and services.

He also praised MS Ramaiah University of Applied Sciences for its visionary academic environment, research activities, innovative teaching, interdisciplinary approach, modern infrastructure, and strong industry linkages, which provide students opportunities for intellectual and personal growth. The event was attended by MS Ramaiah University Chancellor Dr. MR Jayaram, AIU President Professor Vinay Kumar Pathak, General Secretary Dr. Pankaj Mittal, and other dignitaries.

This gathering underscores the pivotal role of higher education in India's journey from a knowledge-based economy to a global innovation-driven powerhouse.

Dr Narayanaswamy further said consultations have been held with the City Corporations, and pilot visits to select wards allowed a first-hand review of local conditions. Recommendations will consider the geographical, economic, and social profiles of each corporation, as well as inputs from the GBA and city bodies, ensuring a comprehensive and balanced approach.

Present at the meeting were members of the 5th State Finance Commission, Mohamed Sanaulla, RS Phonde, Advisor Dr Chaya Degaonkar, Special Commissioners Dr Harish Kumar, R Ramachandran, Suralkar Vikas Kishore, CEO of BSWML Karigowda, B-SMILE Technical Director BS Prahalad, Deputy Commissioners Gayathri Nayak and Ravindra, Assistant Commissioner Girish Nandan, among others.

Over 50 Illegal Hoardings Removed in Central Bengaluru Drive

BENGALURU

A special drive in Bengaluru Central City Corporation limits saw the removal of more than 51 unauthorized hoardings installed on pedestrian skywalks and bus shelters in a single day. Additional Commissioner (Development) Daljit Kumar said 8 hoardings were removed from pedestrian skywalks and 43 from bus shelters across five divisions.

The drive, conducted under the orders of Commissioner Rajendra Cholan, targeted illegal hoardings in Shanthinagar (7), CV Raman Nagar (6), Shivajinagar (13), Chickpet (22), and Gandhinagar (3). Officials emphasized that the initiative aims to curb illegal installations and educate the public and organizations on compliance.

Executive Engineers, Assistant Executive Engineers, Advertisement and Revenue Officers, along with sanitation staff, actively participated in the operation. Daljit Kumar added that the Corporation will continue such drives to remove flexes, banners, and hoardings that violate regulations, ensuring public spaces remain safe and clutter-free.

The Central City Corporation has been consistent in enforcing rules, warning that unauthorized advertising structures not only breach regulations but also pose hazards to pedestrians and commuters. Citizens and businesses are urged to follow proper channels for installing hoardings and banners. This drive reinforces the administration's commitment to urban order and safety while sending a clear message against illegal advertising practices.

Excise DC, Superintendent Suspended Over ₹25 Lakh Bribe

BENGALURU

The Karnataka state government has suspended Excise Deputy Commissioner Jagadish Naik and Superintendent KM Thammanna, who were arrested for allegedly accepting a bribe of Rs 25 lakh to issue a license for selling liquor. The suspensions were issued under the Karnataka Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules, 1957, pending further inquiry, said Bhimappa P Azure, Under-Secretary, Department of Finance (Excise). During this period, Jagadish Naik has been transferred to Shivamogga, while KM Thammanna has been posted to the KSBL depot in Tumkur. Both officials are barred from leaving their respective headquarters without prior permission from the competent authority.

A team led by City Division SP Shivaprakash Devaraj conducted an operation following allegations that a bribe of Rs 80 lakh was demanded and Rs 25 lakh accepted to issue liquor licenses for a hotel and a microbrewery unit. The operation resulted in the arrest of Jagadish Naik, KM Thammanna, and Constable Lakkappa Gani of Batarayanapura Division. Authorities have confirmed that a detailed investigation is underway to uncover the full extent of the alleged bribery and to hold all involved parties accountable under the law.

MUDA Scam: Former Commissioner Dinesh Kumar Denied Bail

BENGALURU

The Karnataka High Court dismissed the bail petition of former Mysore Urban Development Authority (MUDA) Commissioner GT Dinesh Kumar, who sought release from judicial custody in connection with a money laundering and illegal plot allocation case.

Dinesh Kumar, arrested by the Enforcement Directorate (ED) on September 17, 2025, faces allegations of misusing his authority to allot 283 plots worth over Rs 450 crore to ineligible individuals and transferring illegal funds. Following his arrest, ED attached properties valued at approximately Rs 40 crore belonging to him. A chargesheet detailing the irregularities was filed on November 19, 2025.

Hearing the case, a single-judge bench headed by Justice Sunil Dutt Yadav noted that prima facie evidence exists against the former MUDA Commissioner, and therefore, he cannot be released at this stage. The bench directed the ED to expedite the investigation to prevent unnecessary delay in judicial proceedings and allowed Dinesh Kumar the liberty to file another bail application if the investigation is not completed within three months.

Dinesh Kumar's lawyer had argued that he was cooperating fully with the investigation and was willing to abide by court-imposed conditions for bail. However, the ED maintained that the gravity of the allegations and the evidence on record justified continued judicial custody.

This ruling follows the earlier rejection of Dinesh Kumar's bail plea by the Special Court of People's Representatives on October 10, 2025. The former MUDA Commissioner remains in custody as investigations into the alleged scam continue. Authorities emphasize the ongoing probe aims to bring accountability for the large-scale misuse of public office and illegal allotment of valuable urban land.

He was caught stealing inner garments from a house in Vidyanagar, after which residents alerted police. During a search of his room, authorities recovered 15–20 pairs of women's lingerie and multiple photos and videos showing him wearing them.

Officers have warned residents to remain vigilant and report suspicious activity. Amal remains in police custody as further inquiries continue into his activities across the city.

UK national, Lankan caught in boarding pass fraud

BENGALURU

A 52-year-old UK national and a Sri Lankan man were caught in a boarding pass fraud at Kempegowda International Airport (KIA), exposing a daring plan to bypass immigration checks.

Kandiah Rajagopal, a businessman from West London, handed his Virgin Atlantic boarding pass to Sharusan Kunasekaran, allowing the Sri Lankan national to travel illegally to London. Kandiah, who had booked a 7:20 am flight to London but did not board, was arrested and lodged in Parappana Agrahara Central Prison. Sharusan was detained by UK authorities and will soon be deported to Sri Lanka.

The incident came to light when CISF personnel noticed Kandiah behaving suspiciously for nearly eight hours in the Terminal 2 departure area. Immigration checks revealed Kandiah was in India on a tourist visa and had traveled across Karnataka, Tamil Nadu, and Andhra Pradesh. Investigations showed Sharusan had booked a flight to Singapore on IndiGo but failed to board.

Police learned the two men were acquaintances. Sharusan could not obtain a UK visa, and Kandiah allegedly devised the plan to help him reach London illegally. Both cleared CISF frisking and immigration separately before meeting inside a men's washroom, where Kandiah handed over his boarding pass. Kandiah then booked a ticket to Sri Lanka and loitered at the airport until detected.

During interrogation, Kandiah stated he has been in the hotel business in London for 30 years and survived a shootout in Trincomalee in 2012.

QUOTA BALLOT PETITION

HC Notices Separate Ballots for Women Candidates

BENGALURU

The High Court has issued a notice to the State Bar Council regarding a petition seeking recognition of women candidates under the reservation quota as a separate category, and to arrange separate ballot papers for voting in the upcoming elections on March 11.

The petition was filed by advocate Sandhya U Prabhu, who aims to contest the elections. A single-judge bench headed by Justice BM Shyam Prasad issued notices to the Karnataka State Bar Council, the Bar Council of India, and the Returning Officer, asking the respondents to state their positions. The hearing was adjourned to February 6.

The court rejected the petitioner's interim plea seeking a stay on the January 5 election notification, clarifying that the election will proceed as scheduled.

Advocate Prabhu, appearing in person, explained that elections will fill 18 State Bar Council seats, with 7 reserved for women. Of these, 2 are directly appointed by the Bar Council of India, while elections will be held for the remaining 5 seats. "With more than 200 candidates contesting, it will be difficult for voters to identify women candidates under the reserved quota. A separate category and ballot papers would simplify the process," she argued.

Earlier, in February 2025, the High Court had rejected a plea seeking reservation for lawyers from backward classes and Scheduled Castes and Tribes in Bangalore Bar Association office-bearer elections, noting that only the Supreme Court could authorize such reservations.

In separate petitions filed by the All India Backward Classes Lawyers Foundation and the Karnataka SC, ST Backward Classes Lawyers Federation, a bench headed by Justice R Devadas declined to pass any orders.

The Bar Council elections remain on track, but the petition by Prabhu has raised questions about transparency and accessibility for women candidates under the reservation quota. The court's upcoming February hearing will determine whether separate ballot papers will be mandated.

Police announce imminent arrest of Rajeev Gowda

CHIKKABALLAPURA

Chikkaballapura Superintendent of Police Kushal Chouksi has said that Congress leader Rajeev Gowda, who is accused of threatening the Municipal Commissioner of Shidlaghatta, will be arrested soon. He described Rajeev Gowda as a notorious criminal with multiple cases registered against him.

More than a week has passed since the complaint was filed accusing Rajeev Gowda of using indecent and threatening language against Shidlaghatta City Municipal Council Commissioner Amrutha Gowda. However, the accused has not yet been arrested and has reportedly been absconding since the day of the incident. This delay has raised serious questions among the public about equal justice for all.

Opposition leaders from the BJP and JDS have expressed strong anger, alleging that Rajeev Gowda is being protected by influential people. There are widespread claims that powerful ministers are standing behind him, which has increased public suspicion. Responding to these allegations, District In-charge Minister M.C. Sudhakar has clearly stated that there is no question of protecting anyone, regardless of their influence.

Police officials said special teams have been formed to trace the accused. Searches are being conducted intensively in several locations, including Bengaluru and neighbouring states. The High Court has also taken note of a petition related to the case, adding pressure on the police to act quickly. SP Kushal Chouksi said that Rajeev Gowda has a criminal background, with as many as 16 cases registered against him. He assured that the police have laid a trap and are closely monitoring possible hideouts. The officer said strict action will be taken and no one will be allowed to escape the law.

Meanwhile, public outrage continues to grow, with citizens demanding immediate arrest and fair treatment under the law. Many have urged the police to act without fear or favour and restore confidence in the justice system.

Over a week after a complaint against Rajeev Gowda for threatening language toward Commissioner Amrutha Gowda, he remains absconding, raising public concerns about justice equality

Two transport officials suspended over illegal certificates

BENGALURU

In a major action against dereliction of duty, two transport officials have been suspended for issuing illegal vehicle fitness certificates. Shri Ramalinga Reddy was suspended on the orders of the Hon'ble Minister of Transport and Muzrai, while Shri Nisar Ahmed, Senior Motor Vehicle Inspector, was suspended by the Transport Commissioner.

The action follows an investigation by the e-detection team of the Gujarat State Transport Office.

The team examined data on the Vehicle e-detection portal and found that 41 vehicles, inspected at Karnataka RTO offices, were issued Form-38(A) fitness certificates without physical inspection. On the same day, these vehicles passed through toll plazas in Gujarat, indicating that the certificates had been approved illegally.

Following the discovery, the Minister directed the Transport Commissioner to take strict action.

The Commissioner instructed the Joint Transport Commissioner, Bangalore City Division, to submit a detailed report.

The findings confirmed that Shri Nisar Ahmed had renewed fitness certificates using the 4.0 software without checking the vehicles, violating the Motor Vehicles Act and departmental rules.

The Commissioner's order stated that approving certificates without proper inspection constitutes dereliction of duty. Both officials have been suspended immediately, sending a clear message about accountability and adherence to rules in the Transport Department.

Families await closure months after cloudburst

Jammu

Months after a cloudburst in Chisoti village, Kishtwar, families of the missing are still waiting for closure. Rajesh Kumar and Bindiya from Punjab search for their 22-year-old daughter and her friend, who vanished in August 2025. Another family lost eight members. The victims' families seek death certificates, not compensation, to perform final rituals. With DNA reports pending, the uncertainty grows. Around 65 people died, mostly pilgrims, and over 30 remain missing, as loved ones press for answers and justice.

Ram was arrested after CCTV footage and his confession revealed the premeditated crime.

World must display zero tolerance towards terrorism: EAM

Jaishankar stressed that nations must unite against terrorism, highlighting India and Spain's shared experiences.

NEW DELHI

During a bilateral meeting with Spain's Foreign Minister Jose Manuel Albares, Jaishankar said the global order is changing, making cooperation on common challenges vital, especially in fighting terrorism.

"The world must display zero tolerance towards terrorism," he said, noting both countries have been victims. He also condoled the recent Cordoba train accident in Spain, which killed at least 40 people, and expressed sympathies for the injured and their families.

The meeting also highlighted India-Spain ties, marked by shared democratic values, high-level exchanges, and growing cooperation in defence, AI, and trade. Jaishankar pointed out the upcoming 70th anniversary of diplomatic relations in 2026, along with the Dual Year of Culture, Tourism, and Artificial Intelligence, launched with a logo selected from 1,900 entries.

Defence collaboration includes the Airbus-Tata C-295 aircraft assembly in Vadodara, with the first "Made-in-India" plane expected this year. Bilateral trade exceeds $8 billion, with Indian and Spanish companies actively contributing to infrastructure, energy, IT, pharmaceuticals, and smart city projects.

Jaishankar expressed optimism that strengthened ties in culture, technology, and industry will benefit both nations and encourage responsible, human-centric AI development.

Jaishankar, Albares vow to strengthen India-Spain ties

EAM Jaishankar met Spanish FM Jose Albares to discuss trade, defence, technology, education, and people-to-people ties. They highlighted EU-India Free Trade Agreement, joint Indo-Pacific Ocean Initiative participation, combating terrorism, and shared democratic values. Spain's President will soon visit India, while both nations celebrate 70 years of diplomatic relations in 2026.

Spanish president Sanchez to visit India soon

Spain's President Pedro Sanchez will soon visit India, said Foreign Minister Jose Manuel Albares. He hopes Prime Minister Modi will visit Spain too. Albares highlighted joining the Indo-Pacific Ocean Initiative, upgrading ties to a strategic partnership, fostering trade, defence cooperation, and celebrating the Dual Year of Culture, Tourism, and AI.

Easing defence FDI norms could be a game-changer for India: Report

NEW DELHI

India is planning a major relaxation of Foreign Direct Investment (FDI) rules in the defence sector, potentially raising the automatic route ownership cap for existing licensed defence firms from 49 to 74 per cent and removing unclear conditions, a recent report has highlighted.

The move aims to attract global manufacturers, encourage joint ventures, and bring advanced technology to strengthen domestic production under the 'Make in India' initiative. Experts say this could boost economic growth, create jobs, and enhance national security.

Historically, India has limited foreign involvement in defence due to security concerns. While FDI up to 49 per cent was allowed in 2016, and 74 per cent for new licences by 2020, existing firms remained capped at 49 per cent. The proposed change would give multinational companies greater operational control, intellectual property protection, and ownership clarity.

India's defence market exceeded USD 75 billion in 2025–26, with plans to increase the budget by 20 per cent in 2026–27. Liberalised norms could attract USD 5–10 billion in the next decade and reduce import dependence, which currently covers 60–70 per cent of defence needs.

Technology transfer from allies like the US, France, and Israel could help India indigenise fighter jets, submarines, missiles, AI, cybersecurity, and hypersonics. Analysts note India could emulate countries like Turkey, Brazil, and Vietnam, leveraging free-trade agreements and skilled labour to become a defence exporter.

The report also highlighted security risks, competition concerns for domestic firms, and bureaucratic hurdles. Experts recommended safeguards for sensitive areas, incentives for local suppliers, streamlined approvals, and joint ventures to ensure domestic industry benefits while boosting defence manufacturing.

The award recognizes her impact on marginalized communities and social justice in Africa and beyond

Graca Machel wins Indira Gandhi Peace Prize

NEW DELHI

Graca Machel, former Education and Culture Minister of Mozambique, has been awarded the Indira Gandhi Prize for Peace, Disarmament, and Development for 2025.

The award recognises her exceptional work as a stateswoman and humanitarian, highlighting her lifelong efforts to protect human rights and promote social justice in Southern Africa.

The International Jury, chaired by Shivshankar Menon, India's former National Security Advisor, cited her transformative contributions in education, health, nutrition, economic empowerment, and humanitarian work under challenging circumstances. "She has inspired millions to build a more equitable and just world," the Indira Gandhi Memorial Trust stated.

Born on October 17, 1945, Machel studied at mission schools and later the University of Lisbon, where she became politically active. Returning to Mozambique in 1973, she joined the liberation movement FRELIMO and fought for independence. After independence in 1975, she became Mozambique's first Minister of Education and Culture, boosting school enrolment dramatically for boys and girls.

Machel's international influence spans founding The Elders, Girls Not Brides, and membership in the UN SDG Advocacy Group. She leads the Africa Child Policy Forum and the Mandela Institute for Development Studies, advancing policies for vulnerable youth. She also established the Graca Machel Trust and Zizile Institute to support women's empowerment, food security, and child development.

Her efforts have earned global recognition, including the WHO Gold Medal in 2018 for improving women's and adolescents' well-being. The jury praised her ability to create lasting social transformation through leadership, policy influence, and humanitarian initiatives.

Global election heads gather at IICDEM-2026 Delhi Plenary

NEW DELHI

Heads of 42 election management bodies attended a high-level plenary on Wednesday at the India International Conference on Democracy and Election Management (IICDEM) 2026, held at Bharat Mandapam. The session provided a platform for in-depth discussions on modern challenges to election administration.

The proceedings were led by Chief Election Commissioner of India Gyanesh Kumar, along with Election Commissioners Sukhbir Singh Sandhu and Vivek Joshi. Around 60 international delegates, including electoral leaders, ambassadors, and high commissioners, actively participated.

The plenary allowed participants to share experiences, address common hurdles, and explore solutions for challenges such as misinformation, technological disruptions, and promoting inclusive voter participation. Discussions stressed the need for stronger international cooperation to protect election integrity.

India, serving as chair of the International Institute for Democracy and Electoral Assistance (International IDEA) in 2026, presented thematic priorities including electoral innovation, capacity building, and global partnerships to tackle emerging issues. Delegates shared perspectives on digital transparency, safeguarding voter rights, and responding to geopolitical shifts affecting democratic stability.

The session highlighted India's growing leadership in global electoral dialogue, drawing on its experience in managing large-scale, diverse elections. Organised by the India International Institute of Democracy and Election Management under the Election Commission of India, IICDEM-2026 continues over three days with plenary and thematic sessions.

With participation from over 70 countries, the conference promotes best practices, technology, and mutual learning among election stakeholders. Outcomes are expected to strengthen global cooperation and enhance democratic standards worldwide.

MGNREGA replacement snatches people's rights: Cong

NEW DELHI

The Congress on Wednesday alleged that the government is snatching people's rights by replacing MGNREGA with a new scheme called VB-G RAM G. The party is organising a dialogue on Thursday, where workers will participate, bringing a fistful of soil from their work sites to symbolise their struggle.

Sandeep Dikshit, Chairperson of Rachnatmak Congress, said MGNREGA had been a lifeline during the Covid period, helping millions build roads, schools, panchayat buildings, ponds, and water harvesting structures. "People's rights are being taken away. The government is destroying the very process that supported local development," he said.

The 'MGNREGA Bachao Sangram' is ongoing in several states and districts, he added, and workers from across India will arrive at Jawahar Bhawan in Delhi to share their experiences and discuss future strategies. Dikshit said the programme will allow people to narrate their struggles and collectively send a message of resistance.

"Each worker will bring a fistful of soil from their MGNREGA work site. All soils will be collected together as a symbol of people's struggle and contribution to nation-building," he said.

The Congress leader accused the Modi government of undermining the panchayats' role in deciding local development and alleged that replacing MGNREGA weakens the rights of farmers and labourers who have long relied on the scheme for livelihood and community development.

JD-U doesn't need RCP Singh: Bihar minister

PATNA

Bihar Transport Minister Shrawon Kumar on Wednesday stated that the Janata Dal-United (JD-U) has no need for leaders like RCP Singh. He criticised Singh's past actions, saying the former Union Minister had questioned Chief Minister Nitish Kumar's health and ability to govern.

"Until yesterday, he was telling people that Nitish Kumar was ill, unwell, and incapable of working," Kumar said. He added that the parties Singh later joined had vowed to quit politics if they won even 25 seats but instead tried to finish off Nitish Kumar. "There is no need for those who, until yesterday, were trying to destroy Nitish Kumar and are now desperate to bow before him," the minister said.

Kumar also questioned Singh's political journey. "He formed his own party, which failed, then joined the Jan Suraaj Party, whose leaders also tried to finish off Nitish Kumar. With what ideology does he now want to return and stand with Nitish Kumar?" he asked.

Gujarat farmers get ₹986 crore under PM KISAN Samman Nidhi

GANDHINAGAR

The Gujarat government has disbursed over Rs 9,466 crore in financial aid to more than 32 lakh farmers impacted by unseasonal rains, Agriculture Minister Jitu Vaghani said on Wednesday after a Cabinet meeting chaired by Chief Minister Bhupendra Patel.

Vaghani stated that online bills worth Rs 9,516 crore have been generated so far under the state's agricultural relief package. "As of today, 32.49 lakh farmers have received more than Rs 9,466 crore directly in their bank accounts," he said.

The minister shared that October 2025's unseasonal rainfall affected crops across 33 districts. Online bills worth Rs 8,610 crore were prepared for 30,06,865 farmers, of which Rs 8,571 crore has already been disbursed to 29,93,689 beneficiaries.

Heavy rainfall in September 2025 impacted five districts, with bills worth Rs 792 crore prepared for 2,34,386 farmers. Assistance of Rs 791.19 crore has been paid to 2,33,777 beneficiaries in these areas.

ADDRESS THE NEEDS

ASHA stir, rallies choke Kolkata roads

KOLKATA

Thousands of ASHA workers blocked major roads in Kolkata's Esplanade and Salt Lake on Wednesday after police stopped their march to the health department headquarters.

The protest aimed to demand a minimum monthly honorarium of Rs 15,000 and insurance cover of Rs 5 lakh for on-duty deaths.

The workers, coming from several districts, were first stopped near Sealdah and Howrah railway stations. Around 1,000 regrouped at Esplanade and Karunamoyee, attempting to continue, but police again halted them at multiple points, including Moulali, Bowbazar, and Dorina Crossing. In Salt Lake, some tried to scale barricades outside Swasthya Bhawan, leading to scuffles with police.

The workers, who have been on a 'cease-work' since December 23, said they had not received payments for months despite working long hours for medical emergencies and welfare programmes. Chandana Barik, an ASHA worker, said, "We get around Rs 5,500 a month for 15-16 hours daily. How are we supposed to manage?"

Traffic in Kolkata and Salt Lake was disrupted for over two hours, and several protesters were detained for refusing to disperse. Police termed the gathering illegal due to no prior permission. State officials denied any prior assurance of a meeting, though workers cited Health Secretary N S Nigam had promised to hear grievances on January 21.

Leader of Opposition Suvendu Adhikari criticized the police action as "barbaric" and accused the state government of brutality against women. Meanwhile, one protester fell ill and was attended to by police and health personnel at the site.

Chhattisgarh cabinet approves excise, education, IT, healthcare deals

RAIPUR

The Chhattisgarh Cabinet, chaired by Chief Minister Vishnu Deo Sai on Wednesday, approved major proposals to strengthen revenue, education, technology, and healthcare infrastructure across the state.

The Cabinet cleared the Chhattisgarh Excise Policy for 2026-27, allowing the Excise Department to implement the framework and revenue measures. Details of the policy will be notified soon.

In education, the state allotted 40 acres in Sector-18, Nava Raipur Atal Nagar, to Shri Vile Parle Kelavani Mandal (SVKM) on a 90-year lease. The land will host the Narsee Monjee Institute of Management Studies (NMIMS), a top-ranking national university. Officials said this will enhance access to quality management education in Chhattisgarh.

To promote IT and entrepreneurship, the Cabinet approved a Memorandum of Understanding with Software Technology Parks of India (STPI) to set up four innovation centres in Nava Raipur. These centres will support 133 startups in AI, MedTech, Smart City, and Smart Agriculture over three to five years. An Electronics System Design and Development (ESDD) centre will assist 30–40 hardware startups and MSMEs annually.

In healthcare, proposals were cleared to strengthen diagnostic services at district hospitals, community health centres, and primary health centres. The measures aim to improve lab operations, increase test volumes, and reduce dependency on private facilities.

Officials said these steps will enhance public services, promote entrepreneurship, and improve access to quality education and healthcare throughout Chhattisgarh.

SC extends arrest protection for 3 accused

New Delhi

The Supreme Court on Wednesday extended protection from arrest to three people accused in the Rs 3,500 crore Andhra Pradesh liquor scam. The accused—Balaji Govindappa, Pellakuru Krishna Mohan Reddy, and K Dhanunjaya Reddy—had earlier challenged the High Court's rejection of their bail plea. The bench led by CJI Surya Kant rejected their bail but asked them to seek regular bail in trial court. The SIT, set up by the current government, is probing alleged corruption and kickbacks during 2019–2024.

Rahul Gandhi demands action over Delhi waterlogging

NEW DELHI

Congress leader Rahul Gandhi on Wednesday criticised governance failures in Delhi after sharing a video showing severe waterlogging in Mubarakpur Dabas's Sharma Enclave. Highlighting residents' hardships, he called the situation "urban rot" caused by a "pandemic of greed" and demanded accountability from authorities.

In his X post, Gandhi said citizens' lives have become "hellish torment" while the system serves those in power. He warned that if authorities fail to act, "this rot will reach every doorstep." The video, shot by a local journalist, showed waterlogged streets where residents struggled to move and manage the crisis themselves. Locals said the situation has worsened over six to eight months and accused the government of inaction, urging immediate clearance of drainage and sanitation issues.

Meanwhile, Delhi Pradesh Congress Committee President Devender Yadav visited the Kirari Assembly constituency to assess waterlogging problems. He interacted with residents whose daily lives have been severely disrupted due to overflowing water. Yadav promised to raise the issues with relevant authorities and seek urgent solutions.

He termed the severe waterlogging in Delhi's Sharma Enclave a "pandemic of greed" and urged authorities to take immediate action.

The incident has sparked wider criticism of municipal management in Delhi, with opposition leaders calling for stricter accountability and faster action to prevent recurring urban flooding. Citizens have voiced frustration over prolonged neglect of drainage infrastructure, fearing health hazards and damage to property if the problem continues unchecked. Gandhi's remarks and the video aim to highlight the urgent need for systemic reforms to address urban water management failures in the national capital.

Acharya Lokesh Muni launches global peace initiative

NEW DELHI

Jain spiritual leader Acharya Lokesh Muni on Wednesday emphasised that war, violence, and terrorism have no place in today's world. Speaking during the fifth day of a nine-day katha organised by Pujya Morari Bapu in Delhi for the World Peace Centre Mission, he highlighted a new initiative aimed at resolving global conflicts through dialogue.

Acharya Lokesh Muni said he has been tasked with forming a globally impactful committee to intervene in conflict zones and promote peaceful solutions. "Wherever there is conflict, war, or violence, that committee will intervene and resolve it through dialogue," he said. He added that the katha also serves as a platform to dispel social and global misconceptions.

Bageshwar Dham chief Dhirendra Krishna Shastri praised the initiative and expressed gratitude for establishing the World Peace Centre, calling it a unifying effort for the cause of Sanatan Dharma. He also announced that Acharya Lokesh Muni will now be honoured as Acharya Lokesh Muni Sanatani.

Shastri highlighted the need for "Hindutva Intelligence" (HI) alongside Artificial Intelligence (AI) in modern times. He said Dharma can unite the country, prevent violence, avert global conflicts, and guide humanity towards non-violence and peace. "It is Dharma that can save the world from a Third World War and lead people to peaceful paths," he added.

The initiative is expected to strengthen global peace efforts while promoting dialogue, non-violence, and spiritual unity across nations and societies.

Sanjay Raut lambasts Shinde over Mumbai mayoral Post

MUMBAI

Shiv Sena (UBT) leader Sanjay Raut on Wednesday criticized Maharashtra Deputy Chief Minister Eknath Shinde regarding the Mumbai mayoral post. He said Shinde would have to convince senior BJP leaders to secure the post for Shiv Sena, calling the situation "insulting" for those displaying Balasaheb Thackeray's photo yet seeking approval from BJP leaders in Delhi.

The BJP-Sena alliance swept the BMC elections, with BJP winning 89 of 227 seats, aiming for the mayoral post, while Shinde wants to maintain Shiv Sena's legacy in India's richest municipal corporation. Raut also questioned Chief Minister Devendra Fadnavis' presence at the World Economic Forum in Davos, Switzerland, saying the agreements signed there could have been done in Mumbai and urged disclosure of travel costs to taxpayers.

He added that the chief ministers' Davos visits are unnecessary from an Indian perspective, calling them "ridiculous" and urging transparency in expenditures. Regarding two UBT corporators in Kalyan-Dombivli being unreachable, Raut said legal action, including disqualification proceedings, is underway.

The BMC election results favored the BJP-Sena alliance, which won 118 seats, while Shiv Sena (UBT) secured 65 seats and MNS six in Mumbai. In Kalyan-Dombivli, Mahayuti won 103 of 122 seats; BJP took 50 and Shinde's Shiv Sena 53, while Shiv Sena (UBT) won 11 and MNS five seats.

Meanwhile, former BMC Mayor Kishori Pednekar was elected as the leader of Shiv Sena (UBT) corporators after defeating Rupal Kusale in Ward No. 199.

Colonel Westlake bids farewell as UK naval advisor

NEW DELHI

The British High Commission in India on Wednesday marked the end of Royal Marines Colonel Simon Westlake's tenure as UK Naval Advisor to India, recognising his contributions to strengthening naval cooperation between the two countries. Colonel Westlake had taken charge in January 2024 from Captain Ian Lynn and previously served as Air Advisor and UK Defence Attache to the Caribbean and Ghana.

In an X post, the Defence Section of the British High Commission said, "As Royal Marines Col Simon Westlake's chapter as UK Naval Advisor to India comes to a close, we salute his service and steady hand at the helm." The post announced that Captain Daniel Peskett will take over as the new Naval Advisor, a move expected to further enhance maritime collaboration and defence ties. "With Captain Daniel Peskett taking over, we look ahead with confidence and renewed energy. Fair winds and following seas!" it added.

The transition comes amid India-UK defence cooperation under the India-UK Vision 2035, endorsed last year by Prime Minister Narendra Modi and UK Prime Minister Keir Starmer. The Vision includes a 10-year Defence Industrial Roadmap, strategic coordination via upgraded 2+2 dialogues, advanced technology collaboration, and joint military exercises. India will also serve as a regional logistics hub for UK forces, and both sides will work on counterterrorism, cyber threats, and irregular migration, while enhancing cyber resilience and protecting critical infrastructure.

Additionally, maritime cooperation will be strengthened under the Indo-Pacific Oceans' Initiative, including the creation of a Regional Maritime Security Centre of Excellence. Colonel Westlake's tenure is seen as a bridge in deepening UK-India naval ties, and Captain Peskett's appointment is expected to continue this trajectory of cooperation and strategic partnership.

Telangana panchayat authorities booked over dog culling

RANGAREDDY

Telangana Police on Wednesday registered a case against the Gram Panchayat of Yacharam village in Rangareddy district for allegedly killing about 100 stray dogs.

The case followed a complaint filed by the Stay Animal Foundation, which named the village sarpanch, ward members, and panchayat secretary. Authorities have initiated an investigation, and further inquiry is underway to verify the allegations.

Earlier this month, a similar case emerged in Shayampet and Arepally villages, where police registered an FIR against nine people, including the Shayampet sarpanch, for allegedly killing 300 stray dogs. According to the FIR, the sarpanch's staff had reportedly hired two individuals to kill the animals using poisonous injections. The case was filed under Section 11(1)(a)(l) of the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals Act, 1960, and BNS 325 for mischief by killing or maiming animals.

P Ranjith Rao, Circle Inspector at Shayampet Police Station, said many residents reported dog bites and skin infections. Post-mortem examinations of the deceased animals were conducted at the Regional Forensic Science Laboratory (RFSL).

Authorities stated that these actions underscore the need for strict enforcement of animal protection laws. The investigation aims to establish the facts, ensure accountability, and prevent such incidents in the future.

AI IN MED

AI in healthcare is a necessity: Union Min

NEW DELHI

Union Minister of State for Health and Family Welfare Anupriya Patel on Wednesday launched an online training programme on Artificial Intelligence (AI) in medical education, developed by the National Board of Examinations in Medical Sciences (NBEMS).

The programme aims to equip around 50,000 doctors with AI skills to improve clinical practice, diagnostics, research, and teaching across the country.

Patel noted that over 42,000 doctors have already registered for the initiative. She said AI is a necessity in healthcare, helping doctors enhance their capabilities, bridge staff shortages, and manage growing patient needs. She stressed that AI should be used responsibly, ethically, and accessibly, complementing doctors' work rather than replacing them.

The Minister highlighted that in a country facing a high burden of non-communicable diseases and tuberculosis, AI can support proactive and preventive healthcare, shifting focus from reactive treatments. She praised NBEMS for conceptualising the programme and promoting the integration of technology into medical education and healthcare delivery.

Union Health Secretary Punya Salila Srivastava described the initiative as an important step in strengthening medical education and building capacity among doctors nationwide. She added that such programmes encourage the responsible adoption of emerging technologies, improve healthcare delivery, and advance India's vision of digital health.

Dr Abhijat Sheth, President of NBEMS, said the programme demonstrates the institution's commitment to modernising medical education and empowering doctors. He expressed confidence that the training would improve doctors' skills, enhance healthcare outcomes, and strengthen the country's medical system.

Delhi HC directs timely land provision for judicial housing

NEW DELHI

The Delhi High Court on Wednesday issued directions to ensure timely provision of land for residential accommodation of judicial officers at CBD Shahdara and Rohini. The order followed a writ petition filed by Sahil A. Garg Narwarna.

A Division Bench, comprising Chief Justice Devendra Kumar Upadhyaya and Justice Tejas Karia, took note of an affidavit from the Delhi Development Authority (DDA), which confirmed approval of a plot at CBD Shahdara for staff quarters. A fresh possession letter was issued on January 8, 2026, in favour of the Law Department. The Bench directed that upon taking possession, the Law Department and Public Works Department (PWD) must fence the land to prevent encroachment and ensure security.

The Court also noted that the current land use at CBD Shahdara is commercial and must be converted to residential. Authorities were asked to complete the land-use change within three months. All relevant departments and ministries have been asked to comply.

Regarding judicial housing in Rohini, two plots were identified at Village Shahbad, Daulatpur, after a site inspection on October 22, 2025. The DDA has issued an allotment letter for a larger plot adjacent to existing judicial quarters. The Bench directed the concerned authorities to take possession within eight weeks and ensure budgetary arrangements are in place.

The DDA and GNCTD must file a status report on progress at both Shahdara and Rohini. The matter will be reviewed next on April 6, 2026.

Eyes on the stars, feet on the ground...

After three decades with NASA, astronaut Sunita Williams has officially retired, closing a career that blended grit, record-breaking endurance and quiet trailblazing. Her career also involves commanding the International Space Station to running a marathon in orbit.

The announcement of her retirement comes as Williams (60), is visiting India, where she addressed an interactive session at the American Centre on Tuesday, reflecting on a journey that took her from Earth's surface to some of the longest and most demanding missions aboard the International Space Station.

At the event, titled "Eyes on the Stars, Feet on the Ground," Williams spoke about one of the toughest phases of her career, an eight-day mission that unexpectedly stretched into more than nine months in space after technical problems on Boeing's Starliner spacecraft. What was meant to be routine became a defining test of resilience as she and her crewmates adapted to an extended stay in orbit.

A LEGACY OF 27 YEARS

NASA formally confirmed her retirement in a statement issued on January 20. "After 27 years of service, NASA astronaut Suni Williams retired from the agency, effective Dec. 27, 2025. Williams completed three missions aboard the International Space Station, setting numerous human spaceflight records throughout her career," the agency said.

"Suni Williams has been a trailblazer in human spaceflight, shaping the future of exploration through her leadership aboard the space station and paving the way for commercial missions to low Earth orbit," NASA Administrator Jared Isaacman said. "Her work advancing science and technology has laid the foundation for Artemis missions to the Moon and advancing toward Mars, and her extraordinary achievements will continue to inspire generations to dream big and push the boundaries of what's possible," he added.

Born on September 19, 1965, in Euclid, Ohio, to a Gujarati father, Deepak Pandya, from Jhulasan in Gujarat's Mehsana district, and a Slovenian mother, Ursuline Bonnie Pandya, Williams has long been a source of pride across continents.

Over the course of her career, she logged 608 cumulative days in space, second among NASA astronauts, and completed nine spacewalks totalling 62 hours and six minutes, the most by any woman and the fourth-highest overall.

'SPACE, SECOND HOME'

Williams herself described space as home. "Anyone who knows me knows that space is my absolute favourite place to be," she said. "It's been an incredible honour to have served in the Astronaut Office and have had the opportunity to fly in space three times. I had an amazing 27-year career at NASA, and that is mainly because of all the wonderful love and support I've received from my colleagues."

CAREER MILESTONES

Her career milestones span multiple eras of spaceflight—from launching aboard space shuttle Discovery in 2006, to commanding the space station, to flying on both Boeing and SpaceX spacecraft. A retired US Navy captain, Williams is also an accomplished pilot with more than 4,000 flight hours across 40 aircraft.

Reflecting on what lies ahead, she said the space station and the science conducted there have made future exploration possible. "I hope the foundation we set has made these bold steps a little easier. I am super excited for NASA and its partner agencies as we take these next steps, and I can't wait to watch the agency make history."

A NAVAL PILOT, AN ASTRONAUT

Before frequently commuting to space, Williams built her career in the US Navy, flying helicopter missions during Operation Desert Shield and Desert Storm. She later became a test pilot, a role that demands precision, calm decision-making, and an ability to handle experimental aircraft, all qualities that later defined her career as a prominent astronaut. In 1998, Williams was selected as a Nasa astronaut, and joined the space agency at a time when the ISS was still taking shape. Astronauts then were not just scientists but builders, expected to assemble and maintain a complex laboratory while living inside it.

RECORD TIME IN ORBIT

Across multiple missions, Williams spent more than 320 cumulative days in space, making her one of Nasa's most experienced long-duration astronauts. Williams has also spent 608 days in space across her career, putting her second on the list of cumulative time in space by a Nasa astronaut. Her last mission saw her get stuck aboard the ISS.

The silver lining was that she saw her name climb the ranks on the list of American astronauts with the longest single spaceflight. She ranks sixth, tied with Butch Wilmore, who too was stuck in space along with Williams for a total of 286 days.

Williams' missions focused heavily on research into how the human body adapts to microgravity, including bone density loss, muscle weakening, balance disorders, and cardiovascular changes.

This work became increasingly important as space agencies began planning missions beyond low Earth orbit, including long stays on the Moon and eventual journeys to Mars.

A SPACEWALKER

Williams is also remembered for her extensive work outside the ISS. She completed nine spacewalks throughout her career, spending more than 60 hours in the vacuum of space. It's the most amount of time a woman has spent spacewalking, and ranks fourth in the all-time cumulative spacewalk duration in Nasa's history. These missions involved installing new power systems, repairing cooling lines, and upgrading station hardware. Williams' performance during these operations made her a trusted choice for complex repairs.

COMMANDER WILLIAMS

In 2012, Williams became the commander of the ISS, placing her in charge of daily station operations and crew safety. The role required coordination with mission control centres in the US, Russia, Europe, and Japan, often across different time zones and languages. Her command came during a period when the ISS was evolving into a fully operational research platform, hosting hundreds of experiments simultaneously. As Sunita Williams steps away from active service, she leaves behind more than flight records. Her career stands as a testament to the notion that space exploration is not just about rockets and technology. It's also about people who can adapt, endure, and lead far from Earth.

Sunita Williams' Indian roots

Sunita Williams's father was a neuroanatomist born in Jhulasan, in Mehsana District, Gujarat, but later migrated to the US and married Bonnie Pandya, a Slovenian. Born in Euclid, Ohio, she considers Needham, Massachusetts to be her hometown. Willians and her husband, Michael, enjoy hanging out with their dogs, working out, working on houses, cars, aeroplanes, hiking and camping. The Indian-Slovenian descent consistently promoted STEM fields, frequently carrying items of personal significance to her heritage into space, such as a copy of the Bhagavad Gita and a Ganesha idol.

'Space, an absolute favourite place to be'

"Anyone who knows me knows that space is my absolute favourite place to be," said Sunita Williams. "It's been an incredible honour to have served in the Astronaut Office and have had the opportunity to fly in space three times. I had an amazing 27-year career at NASA, and that is mainly because of all the wonderful love and support I've received from my colleagues. The International Space Station, the people, the engineering, and the science are truly awe-inspiring and have made the next steps of exploration to the Moon and Mars possible. I hope the foundation we set has made these bold steps a little easier. I am super excited for NASA and its partner agencies as we take these next steps, and I can't wait to watch the agency make history," she was quoted by NASA.

Court Ban Ignored As Trees Felled On Lahore Campus

LAHORE

Despite a clear Lahore High Court order banning tree cutting, dozens of trees were reportedly felled at Punjab University, raising public anger and student criticism online. The controversy began after the western boundary wall near the Shaikh Zayed Islamic Centre partially collapsed following heavy rain and wind. The university's engineering department reportedly recommended removing damaged trees, and a private contractor began cutting them over the weekend when the campus was mostly empty.

The Shajar Dost Community alleged that no public tender was advertised for the tree-cutting contract and that nearly 60 trees, including fruit-bearing mango and jambolan varieties, were removed unlawfully. The contract, reportedly worth PKR 550,000, was allegedly awarded without notifying the auction committee. Students and environmental activists quickly shared videos and images online, accusing the university of ignoring the court order and harming green cover in the city.

Former South Korean PM Sentenced Over Insurrection

SEOUL

South Korea's former Prime Minister Han Duck-soo was sentenced to 23 years in prison on Wednesday for his role in an insurrection linked to former President Yoon Suk Yeol's brief imposition of martial law on December 3, 2024. The Seoul Central District Court ruled this was the first case confirming the decree as an insurrection. Han's punishment exceeded the 15 years requested by special counsel Cho Eun-suk's team.

The court said Han helped organize the insurrection by urging Yoon to convene a Cabinet meeting before issuing the martial law decree. He did not oppose the decree during the meeting and allegedly encouraged Interior Minister Lee Sang-min to cut power and water to media critical of the administration. The judge emphasized that Han neglected his constitutional duties and responsibilities as a prime minister, choosing instead to participate in the insurrection.

South Korea's ex-Prime Minister Han Duck-soo received a long prison sentence for his insurrection role

Han also signed a revised proclamation after the decree was lifted to make it appear legitimate and lied under oath at the Constitutional Court. He is the first member of Yoon's Cabinet to be sentenced. Han denied the allegations, claiming he knew nothing about the martial law plans beyond the decree itself and never supported them.

The ruling could affect Yoon's own trial, which ended last week with prosecutors seeking the death penalty. Yoon's verdict is expected on February 19. Under South Korea's Constitution, an insurrection is defined as any act aimed at overthrowing the state or subverting the Constitution, whether through a riot or by attempting to remove authority over part or all of the country.

Japanese Court Sentences Abe's Killer To Life

TOKYO

A Japanese court on Wednesday sentenced Tetsuya Yamagami, 45, to life in prison for assassinating former Prime Minister Shinzo Abe in 2022. The Nara District Court described the attack, carried out using a homemade gun, as "vile and extremely vicious." Prosecutors had requested life imprisonment, which the court upheld.

Yamagami admitted shooting Abe while he gave a speech in Nara. His defence asked for a shorter term of 20 years, claiming Yamagami's difficult upbringing and harm caused by the Unification Church influenced his actions. Yamagami said his family suffered financially due to his mother's 100 million yen donations to the religious group and believed Abe was connected to the church's political influence. The court found him guilty of murder and violating Japan's Firearms and Swords Control Law, despite the defence arguing that his homemade gun was not covered under the law.

The assassination drew national attention to the Unification Church's fundraising practices. Following public concern, the Japanese government investigated, leading to a Tokyo court order to dissolve the church and remove its tax benefits. Laws regulating manipulative fundraising were also enacted in 2022 to protect members' children.

Shinzo Abe, Japan's longest-serving prime minister, died at 67 after being shot.

EYE ROBOT

China Develops Robot For Precise Eye Surgery

BEIJING

Chinese researchers have developed an autonomous robot capable of performing delicate eye injections with high precision and safety. The system was created by the Institute of Automation under the Chinese Academy of Sciences to treat retinal diseases.

In a study published in Science Robotics, the robot successfully completed subretinal and intravascular injections in animal tests with 100% accuracy. Eye surgery is difficult because of the tiny, soft structures of the organ. The robot uses advanced algorithms for 3D spatial perception, precise positioning, and trajectory control to guide its robotic arm.

Tests on eyeball models, ex vivo pig eyes, and live animals showed the robot reduced positioning errors by nearly 80% compared to manual surgery. Even against surgeon-controlled robotic surgery, errors dropped by about 55%, highlighting improved safety and consistency. Researchers said the system could shorten training periods for surgeons and make complex surgeries possible in remote or extreme locations without specialist doctors.

In November 2025, a Chinese medical team successfully performed a remote robotic retinal injection using a 5G-connected robot. The surgery took place over 4,000 kilometers apart, with a robot in Urumqi positioning the needle while surgeons in Guangzhou guided it to the retina and injected medication. The operation took less than seven minutes, with the network stable and the robot responding smoothly.

This advancement marks a major step in combining robotics and telemedicine to improve surgical accuracy, expand access to eye care, and reduce risks in microsurgeries. Experts believe such autonomous systems could revolutionize ophthalmology worldwide, bridging gaps between urban hospitals and remote regions while ensuring safer and faster treatments.

Markets Expect Greenland Deal After Davos, Says Ajay Bagga

Market analyst Ajay Bagga says investors remain calm, expecting negotiations over Greenland tensions to limit fallout for global markets

MUMBAI

Union IT Minister Ashwini Vaishnaw rejected the IMF chief's view placing India in a second tier of AI economies, saying India ranks among global leaders. Speaking at Davos, he cited Stanford rankings on AI readiness and said India is advancing across applications, models, chips, infrastructure and energy, while building an independent AI path and focusing on practical, service-driven AI deployment.

Market expert Ajay Bagga said global investors are largely pricing in a deal on Greenland after the World Economic Forum summit ends. He said recent tensions between the United States and Europe have raised tariff worries and short term "sell America" trades, but the impact remains limited. According to Bagga, most investors believe former US President Donald Trump will return from Davos with a negotiated arrangement rather than an escalation.

Bagga explained that markets expect the United States to seek limited strategic access, such as military bases, while avoiding a wider conflict. He added that investors feel Europe can slow any sharp rise in tensions through firm talks. As a result, bond markets are not expecting lasting pressure on US Treasury yields.

The Greenland issue intensified in January 2026 when Trump renewed efforts to acquire the territory from Denmark. This move added uncertainty to global markets and revived questions about long standing alliances. Bagga said Europe is now under pressure to raise defence spending and reduce security dependence on Washington.

He also noted that Europe may speed up free trade agreements with other regions to cut reliance on the US. Highlighting strong ties, Bagga said US and European trade totals about 1.5 trillion dollars, with companies holding nearly 4.7 trillion dollars in shared assets.

Bagga warned that decades of global order are being tested, pointing to unusual political messaging and maps. Still, he said markets expect limits to these actions. He added that de dollarisation may grow slowly, but the dollar bonds remain dominant.

Cabinet Clears Equity Boost For SIDBI Support

NEW DELHI

Rs 5,000 crore equity infusion aims to strengthen SIDBI and expand affordable credit access for millions of small businesses nationwide

The Union Cabinet on Wednesday approved a major equity support package of Rs 5,000 crore for the Small Industries Development Bank of India to strengthen lending to micro, small and medium enterprises. The decision was taken at a meeting chaired by Prime Minister Narendra Modi and is aimed at improving credit flow to small businesses across the country.

According to the government, the equity will be infused by the Department of Financial Services in three phases. An amount of Rs 3,000 crore will be provided in the 2025-26 financial year, followed by Rs 1,000 crore each in the next two years. This phased support will help SIDBI maintain a strong capital base while expanding operations.

The Finance Ministry said the additional capital will allow SIDBI to raise funds at competitive rates from the market. This, in turn, is expected to increase affordable loans for MSMEs operating in manufacturing, services and emerging sectors.

With improved access to finance, the number of MSMEs supported by SIDBI is projected to rise from 76.26 lakh to nearly 102 lakh by the end of the 2028 financial year. Officials said about 25.74 lakh new enterprises are likely to benefit during this period.

The move is also expected to have a positive impact on employment. Based on existing trends, the expansion of MSME credit could help generate around 1.12 crore new jobs nationwide.

The government said the equity support will also prepare SIDBI for future needs, including digital lending platforms, collateral free credit products and venture debt for startups. Maintaining adequate capital will ensure the bank remains stable even under stress conditions. The decision underlines the government's focus on strengthening MSMEs for sustainable growth.

Discoms Must Be Financially Strong For Better Services

NEW DELHI

Power Minister Manohar Lal on Wednesday said that India's power sector is set to grow enormously, and strong, financially empowered Discoms are essential for better services and consumer satisfaction.

Speaking at the inaugural session of the Electricity Distribution Industry Conference (EDICON: 2026), Lal highlighted that a thriving power sector is critical to support the country's growing economy. He urged State Electricity Regulatory Commissions to adopt cost-reflective tariffs while ensuring targeted subsidies for needy consumers, as per the Electricity Act.

The minister also released the first annual report of the All India Discoms Association (AIDA), which provides an overview of efforts by distribution companies to enhance supply reliability, operational efficiency, and measures taken by the Ministry of Power and CERC to address sector challenges. During the event, Lal awarded 12 Discoms across six categories, representing states including Gujarat, Odisha, Assam, Bihar, Uttar Pradesh, Maharashtra, Rajasthan, Tamil Nadu, and West Bengal. Significantly, the power distribution sector has reported a rare turnaround, with distribution companies and power departments posting a combined net profit after tax (PAT) of Rs 2,701 crore in FY2024-25. This marks a sharp improvement from a loss of Rs 25,553 crore in FY2023-24 and a massive Rs 67,962 crore loss in FY2013-14.

Since the unbundling and corporatisation of State Electricity Boards, Discoms had largely remained unprofitable, making this milestone historic. The minister described the achievement as the start of a new chapter for India's power distribution system, crediting government reforms aimed at improving efficiency, financial health, and service quality of utilities. The development signals a positive outlook for India's energy sector and enhanced consumer experience in the coming years.

Budget 2026 Likely To Maintain Fiscal Deficit Steady

NEW DELHI

The upcoming Union Budget 2026 is expected to maintain the fiscal deficit at 4.4 per cent of GDP, the same as FY26, according to a report by Nuvama. The Finance Minister is unlikely to pursue further fiscal consolidation, even as the Indian economy shows early signs of recovery.

The report noted that while tax cuts in 2025 have boosted consumption in certain areas, broader spending cuts to meet FY26 targets have limited widespread benefits. For FY27, monetary easing measures need to be complemented with fiscal support, but a full-fledged fiscal expansion is unlikely. Instead, the government may pause further consolidation to sustain growth momentum.

To strengthen investment, the report suggested relying on large disinvestments and encouraging public sector undertakings to increase capital expenditure, which has been slow in recent years. Measures such as deregulation, credit-guarantee schemes, and steps to improve the ease of doing business may also feature in the budget. A credit guarantee scheme for microfinance institutions to support low-income borrowers is under consideration.

Nuvama highlighted that while higher development spending and capex can help, corporate earnings may continue to face pressures, and external risks remain a concern. Tweaks to capital gains taxes could influence near-term market sentiment.

The report added that FY26 focused on consumption via tax rationalisation, while FY27 is likely to emphasize investment support through deregulation. Sectors expected to receive attention include semiconductors, AI, robotics, and exports. Overall, the FY27 budget is projected to support growth modestly, with recovery remaining gradual but steady.

Universities Must Drive Innovation And Entrepreneurship Nationwide

BENGALURU

Governor Thawar Chand Gehlot on Wednesday urged universities to actively promote innovations that address challenges in rural development, healthcare, education, environment, and digital inclusion.

Inaugurating the two-day South Zone Vice Chancellors' Conference-2026 at Ramaiah University of Applied Sciences (RUAS), jointly organised by the Association of Indian Universities (AIU), he said India can move from a knowledge-based economy to an innovation-driven global leader only if universities become centres of entrepreneurship. He stressed exposing youth to the latest technologies to enhance skills, encourage self-employment, and contribute to national development.

Highlighting South India's leadership in education, science, and technology, the Governor cited Bengaluru as a model where education, research, and industry collaborations create global-level innovations. He called for expanding this model nationwide. Conference discussions will focus on fostering entrepreneurial thinking, establishing incubation and innovation centres, and strengthening university-industry partnerships.

Gehlot said entrepreneurship is not just for economic growth but also drives social change, sustainable development, and inclusive progress. He emphasised higher education institutions should act as hubs of innovation, leadership, and nation-building. With guidance, resources, and opportunities, students' ideas can lead to self-reliance, employment generation, and societal benefits. He also lauded RUAS for its modern infrastructure, interdisciplinary approach, research initiatives, innovative teaching methods, and industry linkages, which help students grow intellectually and personally. RUAS Vice Chancellor Dr. Kuldeep Kumar Raina said around 120 Vice Chancellors attended in person, while 100 joined online. AIU President Prof. Vinay Kumar Pathak urged institutions to equip students with knowledge of innovation to become entrepreneurs, noting that conference resolutions would be submitted to the government for implementation.

GOLD RALLY

Gold Hits Record Highs In Domestic Markets

NEW DELHI

Gold futures surged to a record high in domestic and global markets on Wednesday, driven by strong safe haven demand amid rising global uncertainty.

On the Multi Commodity Exchange, gold futures for February delivery jumped by Rs 7,774 to hit an all time high of Rs 1,58,339 per 10 grams, marking the third straight session of gains. Prices have risen sharply over the past three trading days, climbing by Rs 15,822, or over 11 per cent, since January 16.

Silver also continued its upward move and touched a fresh record on the exchange. Silver futures for March delivery surged by Rs 11,849 to Rs 3,35,521 per kilogram, reflecting strong buying interest in precious metals.

Market experts said investors are shifting money away from risky assets as global trade tensions and geopolitical worries increase. Rahul Kalantri of Mehta Equities said the rally in gold and silver is supported by weakness in global equity markets and growing demand for safety.

In overseas markets, gold futures on the Comex crossed the USD 4,800 per ounce level for the first time. February gold contracts rose to around USD 4,880 per ounce, while silver traded close to record highs.

Analysts said rupee weakness has made gold imports costlier, adding to domestic price gains. Expectations of future interest rate cuts by the US Federal Reserve, falling bond yields and ongoing geopolitical tensions are further supporting the rally in bullion prices.

With uncertainty persisting, experts expect demand for gold and silver to remain firm in the near term, keeping prices elevated across domestic and international markets in coming sessions despite short term volatility risks ahead.

Power's Peril: A Deep Dive into Authority, Abuse, and Accountability in the Workplace

In the bustling heart of Bengaluru, a high-ranking police official's career came to a screeching halt when a disturbing video surfaced online. The footage, which quickly spread across social media platforms, allegedly captured the officer in compromising situations with women inside his office, while in uniform. This incident not only sparked widespread outrage but also highlighted deeper issues within public institutions. The state government responded swiftly, issuing a suspension order that cited behavior unbecoming of a public servant, one that had brought significant embarrassment to the administration. An inquiry was launched to investigate potential violations of conduct rules, with the officer barred from leaving headquarters without permission and entitled only to standard allowances during this period.

This wasn't the officer's first brush with controversy. Earlier scrutiny had arisen from connections to a gold smuggling case involving a family member, adding layers to the unfolding drama. Audio clips and additional videos emerged, intensifying questions about professional ethics in government offices. The home minister emphasized the government's rapid action, warning that further steps, including possible dismissal, could follow the probe. He described such events as a stain on the police force's reputation, insisting that no level of seniority would shield wrongdoers. The episode left the public reeling, underscoring a commitment to upholding discipline and trust in state institutions amid national scrutiny.

This case serves as a stark reminder of how power, when misused, can erode the foundations of organizations. It echoes broader patterns seen in workplaces everywhere—subtle intimidations, unchecked privileges, and systemic failures that allow misconduct to fester. Drawing from real-world insights, this feature explores how authority can morph into something destructive, examining themes like intimidation, impunity, and the silent enablers that perpetuate harm. Through these lenses, we uncover the human toll and pathways to reform, aiming to foster healthier, more equitable environments.

How Power Is Quietly Weaponized in Modern Workplaces

In many offices, the line between strong leadership and subtle coercion blurs, creating environments where employees feel constantly on edge. This form of intimidation often manifests through exclusion from key discussions, excessive micromanagement, or withholding critical information needed for success. Such tactics, though not always overt, chip away at morale and productivity, fostering a culture where fear replaces collaboration.

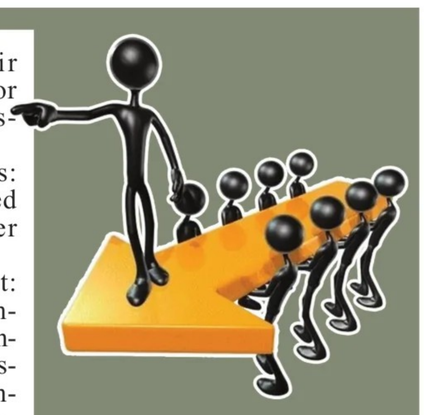
Consider how senior staff might foster hostile competition, pitting team members against each other to maintain control. This can lead to backstabbing and a fractured team dynamic, where trust evaporates. Psychological pressure builds when bosses use veiled threats or constant criticism, making workers doubt their abilities and hesitate to voice ideas. Research shows these behaviors are common in hierarchical settings, where power imbalances allow them to thrive unchecked.

To combat this, organizations can implement clear guidelines on respectful communication and regular feedback sessions. Employees facing such issues should document incidents and seek support from HR or trusted allies. Ultimately, recognizing these subtle signs early can prevent escalation, turning potential toxicity into opportunities for growth.

Signs of subtle bullying: Repeated exclusion from meetings, unfair workload distribution, or public humiliation disguised as "feedback."

Impact on individuals: Increased stress, reduced self-esteem, and higher burnout rates.

Organizational fallout: Lower innovation as employees withdraw from contributing ideas. By addressing these quietly weaponized power dynamics, workplaces can shift toward inclusivity, where authority inspires rather than intimidates.



From Leadership to Lordship: When Higher Positions Turn Into Personal Fiefdoms

Some leaders treat their domains like private kingdoms, prioritizing personal gain over collective success. This shift occurs when unchecked authority leads to empire-building, where departments become siloed territories defended fiercely against collaboration.

In such setups, resources are hoarded, decisions favor loyalty over merit, and innovation stalls as cross-functional efforts falter. Founders or long-tenured executives are particularly prone, clinging to control as organizations evolve beyond their initial vision.

The result? Teams feel undervalued, with morale plummeting as personal agendas overshadow shared goals. To counteract, promote distributed leadership and regular audits of resource allocation. Encouraging rotation of roles can prevent entrenchment, fostering a more dynamic structure.

- Warning signs: Refusal to delegate, territorial disputes between departments.
- Long-term damage: Stagnant growth and high turnover among talented staff.
- Solutions: Leadership training emphasizing service over dominance.

By reframing power as a tool for empowerment, organizations can dismantle these fiefdoms and build resilient teams.

Promotions or Payoffs? How Favoritism and Nepotism Corrode Workplace Morale

When advancements hinge on connections rather than competence, resentment brews. Favoritism—whether through family ties or friendships—undermines fairness, leading to unqualified individuals in key roles and demotivated teams. Employees notice when relatives receive swift promotions or leniency on performance, eroding trust in leadership. This not only stifles diversity but also hampers productivity as skilled workers disengage or leave.

Anti-nepotism policies, transparent hiring processes, and merit-based evaluations are vital fixes. Regular audits of promotion patterns can reveal biases, while anonymous feedback channels empower voices.

- Distinctions: Nepotism favors kin; favoritism extends to friends.
- Effects on morale: Increased cynicism and reduced collaboration.

- Preventive measures: Clear criteria for advancements and conflict-of-interest disclosures.

Restoring equity requires vigilance, ensuring opportunities reflect effort and ability, not affiliations.

Whistleblowers at Risk: The High Cost of Speaking Against Workplace Corruption

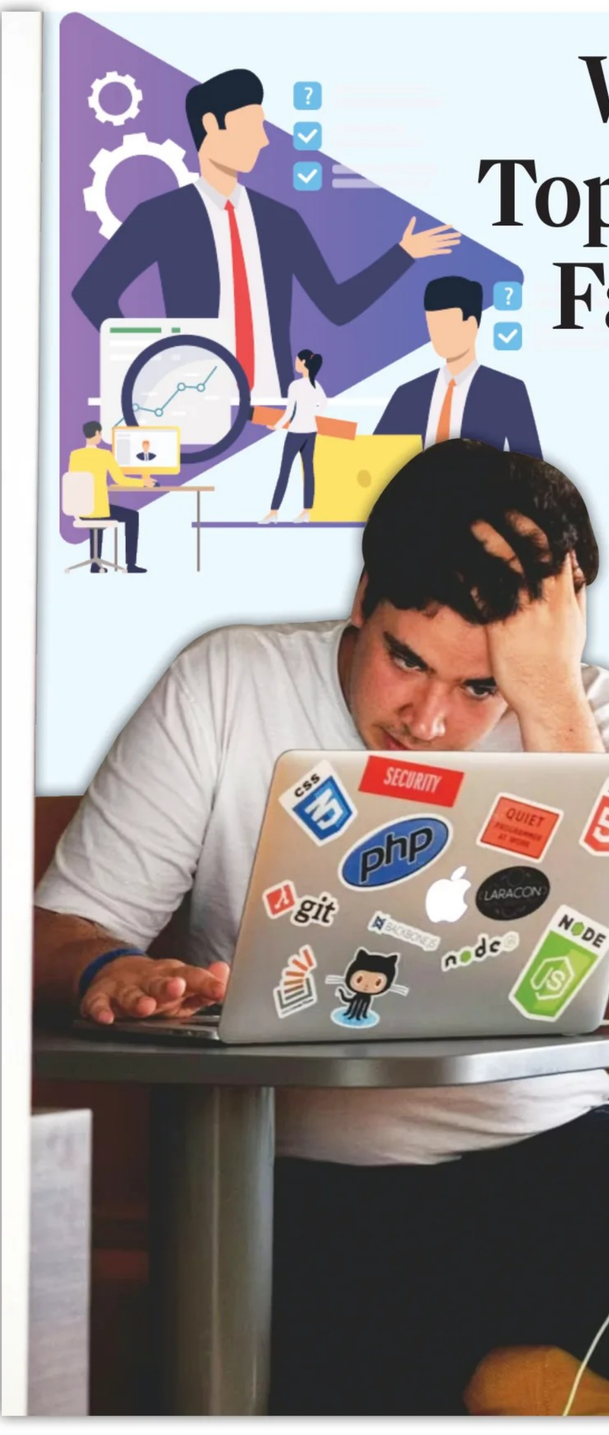
Those who expose wrongdoing often pay dearly, facing retaliation like isolation, demotion, or job loss. This fear deters reporting, allowing corruption to persist.

Whistleblowers endure emotional strain, career setbacks, and social stigma, despite legal protections. Their actions, driven by integrity, highlight systemic flaws but at personal expense. Strengthening safeguards, such as anonymous hotlines and anti-retaliation enforcement, can encourage speaking up. Recognizing their contributions publicly shifts perceptions from traitors to heroes.

- Common risks: Professional ostracism and psychological stress.
- Broader impact: Unchecked fraud damages organizations financially.
- Support strategies: Legal aid and counseling for reporters.

Valuing these courageous acts builds ethical cultures where truth prevails over silence.

Why Misconduct by Top Executives Rarely Faces Consequences



High-level leaders often seem insulated from accountability, even when their actions warrant scrutiny. This phenomenon stems from a mix of elite networks, fear of disrupting the status quo, and inadequate enforcement mechanisms. When executives engage in wrongdoing, companies may opt for quiet settlements or internal wrist-slaps, prioritizing stability over justice.

One reason is the perception that punishing top brass could harm the organization's reputation or finances more than the misconduct itself. Prosecutors and boards hesitate, citing the complexity of proving intent or the risk of lengthy legal battles. This creates a cycle where lower-level staff bear the brunt of rules, while seniors operate with impunity.

Case examples illustrate how this plays out: Firms facing scandals often see executives depart with golden parachutes, leaving employees and shareholders to suffer the fallout. To break this, stronger oversight from independent boards and whistleblower protections are essential. Encouraging a culture where no one is above the law starts at the top, with transparent policies that apply universally.

Barriers to prosecution: Class affinities between enforcers and executives, plus resource-intensive cases.

Consequences for companies: Eroded public trust and potential financial penalties.

Reform ideas: Mandatory reporting of executive misconduct and clawback provisions on compensation.

Humanizing this issue reveals the frustration of rank-and-file workers who witness double standards, urging a push for equitable justice.

CHAMPIONS LEAGUE

GABRIEL JESUS RETURNS, ARSENAL STUN INTER

Brazilian striker shines on return, inspires Arsenal to Champions League victory

MILAN

Gabriel Jesus marked his return to Arsenal's starting lineup in emphatic fashion, scoring twice to help the Gunners seal a historic 3-1 Champions League win over Inter Milan at San Siro.

Making only his third start of the season, Jesus delivered a dynamic first-half display that underlined his growing influence just a month after returning from a long injury layoff.

The Brazilian forward had been sidelined for almost a year after tearing his ACL last January and was named player of the match following his decisive contribution.

Jesus opened the scoring in the 10th minute with an instinctive finish, stretching to convert after Jurrien Timber's effort fell invitingly in the box. Inter responded eight minutes later through Petar Sucic, but Arsenal regained control when Jesus struck again in the 31st minute. Bukayo Saka's corner was flicked on by Leandro Trossard, allowing Jesus to head home from close range.

It was his first Champions League goal in more than two years, his previous strike in the competition having come against Lens in November 2023. Visibly emotional after the match, Jesus said scoring at San Siro was a dream come true, recalling how he grew up watching Serie A and imagining moments like this.

Arsenal manager Mikel Arteta opted to start Jesus ahead of Viktor Gyökeres, who has struggled for consistency since his summer move from Sporting Lisbon. Gyökeres was introduced in the 75th minute and made an immediate impact, scoring Arsenal's third goal nine minutes later to seal the victory.

"This is great, we've been missing Gabby a lot," Arteta said. "It raises his confidence and the team's. Having different profiles in that position only makes us stronger."

The win ensured table-topping Arsenal qualified for the Champions League knockout stage and saw them claim seven consecutive European victories for the first time in the club's history. Still chasing a maiden Champions League title, Arteta's side also leads the Premier League by seven points and will next host Manchester United, carrying momentum from a memorable European night in Milan.

Norwegian minnows shock Guardiola's side as City slump to embarrassing Arctic defeat

Man City shocked by Bodo/Glimt

BODO

Manchester City endured one of the most humiliating nights in their European history after suffering a stunning 3-1 defeat to Bodo/Glimt in the Champions League, as the Norwegian underdogs claimed their first-ever group-stage victory in the competition.

In freezing conditions at the Aspmyra Stadion, located just north of the Arctic Circle, Pep Guardiola's side were overwhelmed by relentless pressing and ruthless finishing from a team playing its maiden Champions League group campaign. Kasper Hogh struck twice in the first half before Jens Petter Hauge added a spectacular third after the break to leave City reeling.

Rayan Cherki briefly gave the visitors hope with a fine strike moments after Hauge's goal, but City's misery deepened when Rodri was sent off for two quick yellow cards, effectively ending any hopes of a comeback.

Bodo/Glimt, whose entire population of around 55,000 could fit inside City's Etihad Stadium, ignored the vast gulf in finances and pedigree to outplay the 2023 European champions.

Managed by Kjetil Knutsen, the Norwegian champions have been one of Europe's most compelling stories in recent years, reaching the Europa League semi-finals last season and already earning draws against Borussia Dortmund and Tottenham in this group.

City, however, failed to heed those warnings. Despite arriving early to acclimatise to the artificial pitch, Guardiola's side looked disjointed and lacked urgency, continuing a worrying run of form. The defeat followed a 2-0 Premier League loss to Manchester United and left City winless in their last four domestic games, seven points adrift of leaders Arsenal.

Defensive frailties were ruthlessly exposed, while Erling Haaland endured another frustrating night, extending his lean spell to just one goal in eight matches across competitions.

Guardiola, who had spoken of enjoying the Northern Lights before kickoff, was instead left to reflect on one of the most chastening defeats of his illustrious managerial career. City will now look to recover when they host Galatasaray in their final group-stage match on January 28, hoping to secure automatic qualification for the last 16.

Vinícius wins over fans with 3 assists and a goal in Real Madrid's 6-1 rout of Monaco

MADRID

Vinícius Júnior delivered a dazzling response to his critics, recording three assists and a goal to lead Real Madrid to a resounding 6-1 Champions League victory over Monaco, turning early jeers from the Santiago Bernabéu crowd into loud applause by the final whistle.

The Brazilian forward was booed when his name was announced and again during the opening minutes, with some fans voicing frustration over his inconsistent form this season. However, as Vinícius began dictating proceedings, the mood inside the stadium shifted dramatically. His relentless running, creativity and end product proved decisive in Madrid's most emphatic European performance of the campaign.

Vinícius assisted Kylian Mbappé for Madrid's second goal in the 26th minute and set up Franco Mastantuono in the 51st. He then delivered a dangerous cross that led to an own goal by Monaco defender Thilo Kehrer before capping his night with a superb strike in the 63rd minute — his first Champions League goal of the season.

Brazilian star silences early boos with decisive display on emotional Bernabéu night

Notably, Vinícius did not celebrate in front of the fans. Instead, he embraced his teammates near midfield before running to the touchline to hug new coach Álvaro Arbeloa, a gesture that symbolised a fresh start after a turbulent period at the club.

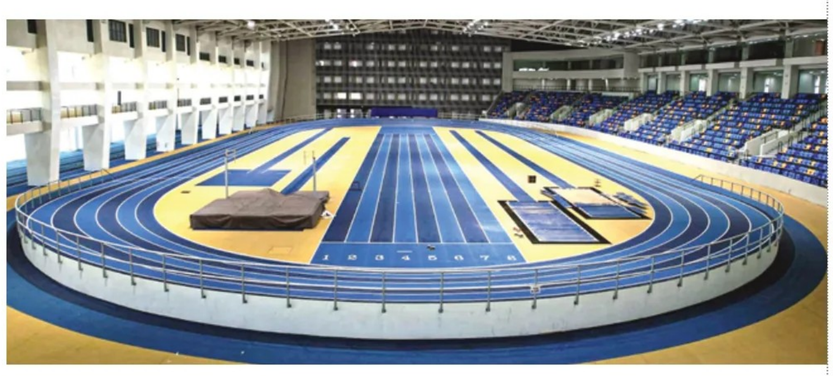
"The last few days were very tough for me," Vinícius said. "I want to be judged only for what I do on the field. When we are together with the fans, we can achieve great things."

Arbeloa praised the reconciliation, saying Vinícius "needs the Bernabéu" and that the fans "enjoyed Vini and will keep enjoying him."

Mbappé, who opened the scoring in the fifth minute and embraced Vinícius repeatedly, defended his teammate in recent days, urging supporters not to single him out. Jude Bellingham added Madrid's sixth late on, sealing a dominant display that followed recent domestic setbacks. The victory offered Real Madrid not just three points, but a sense of unity restored — led by a rejuvenated Vinícius who thrived once the atmosphere turned in his favour.

India bids to host World Indoor 2028

BENGALURU



India has formally entered the race to host the World Indoor Athletics Championships in 2028, with Bhubaneswar identified as the proposed host city, Athletics Federation of India (AFI) officials confirmed.

If the bid is successful, the event will be staged at the Kalinga Indoor Athletics Stadium in Odisha's capital — the only dedicated indoor athletics facility in the country. The state-of-the-art venue has emerged as the centrepiece of India's push to establish itself as a regular host of major international athletics competitions. World Athletics officials arrived in India and are scheduled to inspect the Kalinga Indoor Athletics Stadium. The visit is a key step in the bidding process, with the governing body assessing infrastructure, technical readiness and overall hosting capabilities.

India faces competition from New Zealand, which had also expressed interest in hosting the 2028 edition of the championships back in 2024. The World Indoor Athletics Championships is one of the sport's marquee events, bringing together elite athletes from across the globe and significantly boosting a host nation's profile on the international athletics calendar.

The Bhubaneswar venue is also bidding to host the Asian Indoor Championships in 2028, underlining Odisha's growing reputation as a hub for elite sport. The stadium is scheduled to stage India's first-ever Indoor National Championships in the last week of March, with a two-day competition expected to serve as a test event for future international meets. Located adjacent to the indoor arena, the multipurpose Kalinga Stadium has already built a strong track record. It is set to host a World Athletics Silver-Level Continental Tour meet in August, marking the first time India will stage a Silver-level event after successfully hosting a Bronze-level meet last year.

AFI has stepped up its efforts to bring top-tier athletics events to the country in recent years. In addition to the World Indoor bid, the federation has also pursued hosting rights for competitions such as the Asian Relays, with New Delhi's Jawaharlal Nehru Stadium under consideration as a venue.

The push reflects India's broader ambition to strengthen its athletics ecosystem and gain greater visibility on the global stage through consistent exposure to high-level international competition.

NEW DELHI

The All India Football Federation (AIFF) announced the appointment of Costa Rica's Amelia Valverde as the new head coach of the Indian senior women's football team, entrusting the experienced tactician with guiding the Blue Tigresses into a crucial phase of international competition.

Valverde, 39, has already joined the Indian camp in Antalya, Turkey, where the team is preparing for the AFC Women's Asian Cup Australia 2026, scheduled to be held in March. She will work alongside the existing coaching staff comprising Crispin Chettri, Priya PV and Mario Aguiar.

A former player, Valverde began her coaching journey in 2011 and went on to become the longest-serving head coach in the history of the Costa Rican women's national team. She led Las Ticas from 2015 to 2023, steering them to their only two FIFA Women's World Cup appearances, in 2015 and 2023. At the 2015 World Cup, Valverde made headlines as the tournament's second-youngest head coach at just 28.

Before taking over the senior side, she served as assistant coach of Costa Rica's senior and U-20 women's teams, including during the 2014 FIFA U-20 Women's World Cup. Her tenure with the national team was marked by consistent success, highlighted by a gold medal at the 2017 Central American Games, silver at the 2018 Central American and Caribbean Games, and bronze at the 2019 Pan American Games. In recognition of her impact, she was named the CONCACAF Female Coach of the Year in 2016.

After stepping down from the Costa Rica job, Valverde joined Mexican club CF Monterrey in 2023 and enjoyed immediate success. She guided the side to a historic Bicampeonato in 2024, winning both the Liga MX Femenil Clausura and Apertura titles, and was later awarded the Mexican Balón de Oro for best coach.

As part of her support staff with India, goalkeeping coach Eli Ávila and strength and conditioning coach José Sánchez will also join the national team setup, strengthening the Blue Tigresses' preparations for the continental showpiece.

AMELIA VALVERDE appointed as Indian senior women's football team coach

Daryl Mitchell topples Virat Kohli for top spot in ICC ODI rankings

DUBAI

New Zealand batter Daryl Mitchell displaced Indian superstar Virat Kohli from the top of the ICC ODI batting rankings on Wednesday following a remarkable run of form against India in the recently concluded three-match series.

With 845 rating points, Mitchell surged to No.1 in the latest rankings update, pushing Kohli (795 points) down to second place, the International Cricket Council said in a statement. The two sit comfortably ahead of the chasing pack that includes Afghanistan's Ibrahim Zadran, India captain Rohit Sharma, Shubman Gill and Pakistan's Babar Azam.

Mitchell's rise comes on the back of a sensational series in India, where New Zealand scripted history by winning their first-ever ODI series on Indian soil, ending a 37-year wait. The 34-year-old scored 352 runs across the three matches, including two centuries, finishing as the leading run-getter of the series.

His tally is the most by a New Zealander in a three-match ODI series and the third-highest overall, behind only Babar Azam's 360 against the West Indies in 2016 and Shubman Gill's 360 against New Zealand in 2023. Mitchell also became the fourth-fastest male batter to reach nine ODI hundreds, achieving the feat in just his 54th innings.

It is the second time Mitchell has held the No.1 ranking in ODI cricket, though his previous stint at the summit lasted only three days last November before Rohit reclaimed the position. Notably, Mitchell has never been dismissed for a duck in his 54 ODI innings — the second-longest such streak in men's cricket.

Behind Mitchell and Kohli, Zadran moved up to third with 764 points, swapping places with Rohit, who slipped to fourth. Glenn Phillips was another big gainer, jumping 16 spots to 20th after his match-winning century in Indore. Michael Bracewell also climbed six places to 33rd in the ODI bowling rankings, while Rashid Khan continued to lead the bowling charts.

Mitchell's ascent underlines a late-blooming career built on consistency, resilience and a defining series that reshaped the ODI batting hierarchy.

BCCI bags ₹ 270 crore AI sponsorship deal for IPL with Google's Gemini

NEW DELHI

The Board of Control for Cricket in India (BCCI) has secured a lucrative Rs 270 crore sponsorship deal with Google's artificial intelligence platform Gemini ahead of the 2026 Indian Premier League (IPL), underlining the league's growing commercial power and global appeal.

The three-year agreement will see Gemini serve as an official AI partner of the IPL from the 2026 season. Confirming the development, a senior BCCI official told media that the partnership "reinforces the IPL's global appeal" and reflects increasing interest from technology-driven brands in Indian cricket.

Under the deal, Gemini will provide AI-powered platforms and fan engagement tools during IPL 2026 and subsequent editions covered by the contract. The association comes at a time when artificial intelligence companies are aggressively expanding their footprint in sports sponsorships, particularly in high-visibility leagues like the IPL.

Notably, Gemini's rival ChatGPT is already among the sponsors of the ongoing Women's Premier League (WPL), highlighting the competitive push by global AI leaders to tap into India's massive cricket-following audience.

The BCCI has been recalibrating its sponsorship portfolio over the past year following regulatory changes. In 2025, the Indian government banned real money gaming platforms, forcing the board to look for a new jersey sponsor after Dream11 exited. Eventually, Apollo Tyres stepped in, securing the jersey sponsorship rights in a deal worth Rs 579 crore.

The IPL, widely regarded as the world's biggest T20 league, continues to attract marquee sponsors across sectors. The Tata Group currently holds the coveted title sponsorship rights, while other partners span global manufacturing, consumer goods and technology brands.

When ChatGPT's association with the WPL was announced in November, BCCI secretary Devajit Saikia had highlighted the broader significance of such partnerships.

Former Australia captain sees European league as platform to expand cricket's global footprint

ETPL to open new frontiers for cricket in Europe: Steve Waugh

NAGPUR

Steve Waugh believes the European T20 Premier League (ETPL) can play a transformative role in taking cricket deeper into Europe, describing the region as the sport's "last frontier". The former Australia captain, who owns the Amsterdam Flames franchise, said his decision to invest in the league was driven by both strategic thinking and a personal desire to reconnect with the game in a meaningful way.

The inaugural ETPL marks a significant step for cricket in a region long considered underdeveloped in cricketing terms. The league will have active involvement from the cricket boards of Ireland, Scotland and the Netherlands, while its ownership group includes prominent sporting figures such as Australian hockey Olympian Jamie Dwyer, former New Zealand pacer Kyle Mills and Australia's T20 star Glenn Maxwell.

"To me, Europe is the last frontier of cricket, and that's why I'm involved," Waugh told PTI. He said the decision to join the ETPL was straightforward, adding that he has spent the last 25 years focusing on independent business ventures, including writing and publishing, rather than traditional cricket administration roles.

Waugh said the ETPL excites him because it offers a chance to break new ground. "This is a great challenge. I'm very passionate about creating a winning culture, developing players and identifying talent," he said, underlining his desire to help build sustainable systems rather than simply capitalise on the T20 boom.

While acknowledging the rise of franchise-based leagues worldwide, Waugh stressed his continued love for Test cricket. "We want to see Test cricket survive because it's still the ultimate form of the game," he said.

According to Waugh, the ETPL's strength lies in its geographic and developmental context. With more than 30 European nations playing cricket and several already featuring in T20 World Cups, he believes the league, backed by multiple boards and the ICC, has both credibility and long-term purpose.

Kyle Mills echoed those views, saying the ETPL would provide players from Ireland, Scotland and the Netherlands a valuable platform to showcase their skills and gain global exposure in a high-quality T20 competition.

B'desh will not back down to 'coercion' in India T20 WC row

DHAKA

Bangladesh said it would not bow to what it described as "coercion" to play its T20 World Cup matches in India, throwing its participation in next month's tournament into doubt as the International Cricket Council (ICC) struggles to resolve the standoff.

The Bangladesh Cricket Board (BCB) has refused to play matches scheduled in India, citing security concerns, and has formally requested the ICC to shift its fixtures to co-host Sri Lanka. Talks between the BCB and the ICC over the weekend failed to break the deadlock.

Indian media reports suggested Bangladesh had been given a deadline to confirm participation in India or risk being excluded from the tournament. However, Bangladesh's interim government firmly rejected any such pressure.

"We have logically requested a change of venue for valid reasons," Youth and Sports Adviser Asif Nazrul told state-run BSS news agency.

BCB insists security concerns genuine, rejects pressure amid growing uncertainty over tournament participation

"We cannot be forced to play in India through illogical pressure or unreasonable coercion."

The T20 World Cup begins on February 7, with Bangladesh's four group matches scheduled in Kolkata and Mumbai. Uncertainty within the team is growing, with captain Litton Das admitting players are unsure whether they will feature in the tournament at all.

"From where I stand, I'm uncertain, everyone is uncertain," Litton said after a domestic match, according to Prothom Alo. "At this moment, the whole of Bangladesh is uncertain."

Sources in Colombo said Sri Lanka has not yet been approached to host Bangladesh's matches. One contingency under discussion is replacing Bangladesh with Scotland, the highest-ranked team that failed to qualify. Cricket Scotland, according to a BBC report, has not been contacted but is prepared to step in if required.

The dispute erupted earlier this month after India's cricket board ordered IPL franchise Kolkata Knight Riders to release Bangladesh pacer Mustafizur Rahman, triggering anger in Dhaka and hardening the BCB's stance on travelling to India.

The row has unfolded against a sensitive political backdrop, with Bangladesh preparing for its first elections since the 2024 mass uprising that toppled then Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina. Diplomatic relations between Dhaka and New Delhi have since deteriorated, adding another layer of complexity to the cricketing impasse.

Indian Racing Festival set for historic street race debut in Goa on Feb 14–15

PANAJI

The Indian Racing Festival is set to make history with its first-ever street race in Goa, as Round 4 of the championship unfolds at the Manohar International Airport on February 14 and 15. The high-profile event, to be hosted by Racing Promotions Pvt. Ltd. (RPPL), was announced by Goa Chief Minister Dr. Pramod Sawant and marks a major milestone for motorsport in the state.

After an action-packed Round 3 at the Kari Motor Speedway in Coimbatore, the championship now heads west with the title race finely poised. Goa will host a purpose-built FIA-grade street circuit spanning 2.064 km, featuring 12 challenging turns. Designed to combine technical complexity with visual appeal, the circuit promises an intense test for drivers while offering fans an immersive, first-of-its-kind racing experience in the state.

Welcoming the event, Chief Minister Pramod Sawant said hosting a motorsport spectacle of this scale underlined Goa's ability to stage world-class sporting and entertainment events. He noted that the festival would boost tourism, generate opportunities for local businesses and inspire youth to explore careers in engineering, technology and motorsport-related fields.

The Indian Racing Festival is distinctive for its emphasis on inclusivity, with each team fielding four drivers — an international veteran, an emerging international racer, an Indian driver and a female driver — ensuring diversity and collaboration across nationalities and genders.

Street racing remains central to the festival's vision, building on successful events in Hyderabad and Chennai. RPPL Chairman and Managing Director Akhilesh Reddy said the Goa round represents the next frontier for Indian motorsport by bringing racing closer to fans and integrating it with urban culture.

Alcaraz, Sabalenka, Gauff surge into Australian Open third round

MELBOURNE

World number one Carlos Alcaraz weathered a fierce challenge before marching into the Australian Open third round on Wednesday, with Aryna Sabalenka and Coco Gauff also producing commanding performances to underline their title credentials at Melbourne Park.

Alcaraz overcame a barrage of power hitting from Germany's Yannick Hanfmann to claim a 7-6 (7/4), 6-3, 6-2 victory on Rod Laver Arena. The Spaniard admitted he was tested early by the 34-year-old's relentless shot-making before finding his rhythm and asserting control. "It was tougher than I thought," Alcaraz said, acknowledging Hanfmann's explosive forehands and backhands.

The 22-year-old, already a multiple Grand Slam champion, is chasing a career Grand Slam. Should he lift the Australian Open trophy, he would become the youngest man to win all four majors, surpassing compatriot Rafael Nadal.

Three-time finalist Daniil Medvedev also progressed, though not without effort. The Russian dropped the opening set against France's Quentin Halys before regrouping to win 6-7 (9/11), 6-3, 6-4, 6-2. Medvedev, runner-up in Melbourne in 2021, 2022 and 2024, said he was pleased with his composure as he attempts another title run.

In the women's draw, top seed Sabalenka briefly wobbled after racing to a 5-0 lead against Chinese qualifier Bai Zhuoxuan, but quickly regained focus to seal a 6-3, 6-1 win. The four-time major winner has dropped just nine games so far and is chasing a third Australian Open crown in four years.

Third seed Gauff was near flawless, dismissing Serbia's Olga Danilovic 6-2, 6-2 in just 78 minutes. "Near perfect," said the American, who next faces fellow American Hailey Baptiste.

Top seeds power through stern tests as Grand Slam dreams gather momentum

Elsewhere, Andrey Rublev, Tommy Paul and Francisco Cerundolo advanced, while Alexander Zverev was scheduled for an evening clash as the tournament's opening week gathered pace with home hopes also in action on centre court.

Pakistan supports Bangladesh citing regional security concerns ahead of crucial ICC meeting

PCB tells ICC it backs Bangladesh's refusal to play T20 WC matches in India: Report

KARACHI

The Pakistan Cricket Board (PCB) has reportedly informed the International Cricket Council (ICC) that it supports Bangladesh's refusal to play its T20 World Cup matches in India, citing regional security concerns, according to a media report.

The ICC Board is scheduled to meet to take a final decision on Bangladesh's participation in the T20 World Cup, which begins on February 7. A key point on the agenda will be whether the Bangladesh team will travel to India, where all four of their group-stage matches are currently scheduled.

Bangladesh are slated to play their first three group matches in Kolkata, followed by one fixture in Mumbai. However, the Bangladesh Cricket Board (BCB), with the backing of the country's interim government, has remained firm in its refusal to send the team to India, requesting that their matches be shifted to co-hosts Sri Lanka instead.

On the eve of the ICC meeting, the PCB wrote to the global governing body stating that it supports Bangladesh's position, citing political instability and security concerns in the region. The letter was reportedly copied to all ICC Board members, according to reports.

The ICC and the BCB have held multiple rounds of discussions, including a meeting in Dhaka last weekend, but the deadlock remains unresolved. While the ICC has maintained that the tournament should proceed as scheduled, Bangladesh has insisted that it cannot guarantee the team's safety in India.

The PCB has not issued any public statement on the issue. However, board sources indicated that the Bangladesh government had approached Pakistan seeking support ahead of the ICC deliberations.

Pakistan itself is set to play all its matches in Sri Lanka under a hybrid hosting model agreed upon with the Board of Control for Cricket in India (BCCI) and the ICC until 2027.

The current crisis involving Bangladesh began earlier this month after IPL franchise Kolkata Knight Riders released Bangladesh pacer Mustafizur Rahman following a directive from the BCCI citing "recent developments".

SINDHU, SRIKANTH advance to second round of Indonesia MASTERS

JAKARTA

Two-time Olympic medallist P.V. Sindhu and former world number one Kidambi Srikanth progressed to the second round of their respective events at the Indonesia Masters badminton tournament on Wednesday, keeping India's singles campaign alive at the Super 500 event.

Fifth seed Sindhu showed composure in key moments to defeat Japan's Manami Suizu 22-20, 21-18 in a closely fought women's singles first-round match that lasted 53 minutes. The Indian shuttler held her nerve in both games, edging out her opponent after intense rallies to seal a straight-games victory and move a step closer to regaining her best form on the international circuit.

Srikanth, currently ranked 33rd in the world, produced one of the matches of the day, battling for one hour and 12 minutes before outlasting world number 22 Koki Watanabe of Japan 21-15, 21-23, 24-22. The Indian men's singles player survived a tense decider, saving match points before closing out the contest in a thrilling finish.

Srikanth now faces a tough challenge in the second round against fourth seed Chou Tien Chen of Chinese Taipei, who defeated Ireland's Nhat Nguyen 21-14, 21-15 in his opening match.

However, the day brought mixed results for India. Kiran George exited the men's singles after a 17-21, 14-21 loss to Indonesia's Moh Zaki Ubaidillah. In women's singles, Akarshi Kashyap also bowed out in the opening round, going down 21-8, 20-22, 17-21 to Denmark's Julie Dawall Jakobsen after failing to convert a strong start.
